Dear [redacted]

b6
b7C

As per our conversation of a few weeks ago, here is the promised letter re: Perry L. Cherney & Maxxam/Pacific Lumber. I apologize for the delay, but my life this past month has been a regular soap opera - and beyond the bounds of credible fiction.

O.K. - back to the story here.

Yes, absolutely, [redacted] & Maxxam, Inc.

b6
b7C

have demonstrated a clearly obvious covert intent to goad the environmental movement into seeking and obtaining a eminent domain take over of at least part of the Pacific Lumber Company Eel River Holdings. No question about it - that's what [redacted] [redacted] & his minions @ Maxxam want. It's a very clear intention.

I'm simplifying this a bit so there are the inevitable distortions of make-chop brevity:

The now clearly illegal take over of

The Pacific Lumber Company obtained P.L. for about $40⁰⁰ per share or about $ 800 million dollars.

The Land and Timber of Pacific Lumber Company's Main land holdings alone were and are worth a good Four Times That. This junk bond-financed Takeover was perfect for a Maxxam, inc. whose whole M.O. has been ~~buy~~ buy & sell, quick-profit from the start.

Looking @ The $ 800 million 'Nat' That has to be paid off, [redacted] b6 b7c
First sold The Patco holding Co (to an affiliate) for about $ 350 million. He Then sold The San Francisco Office Bldg. For About $ 30 million. His 'nat' remaining was about $ 420 million, plus interest @ admittedly steep junk bond rates.

He still had plenty of assets: Pacific Lumber had $ 650 million still, I think. The farm market is recovering a bit but was pretty depressed in the late 80's. ∴ a patient man like [redacted] would not likely sell them.) a nice rice farm in the central valley - worth??

IT has some minor Southwest Timber land holdings of relatively small value. (He'll be wont to hold these for now). He still has immense land holdings (for the area) in San Mateo County.

Get a map of this land. It is right in the crossfire of Silicon Valley's expansion & San Francisco's commuter suburb expansion. Developed, this land would be worth perhaps a billion +, after the costs of development had been subtracted from net worth. It's a valuable chunk for a cash-rich corporation. Being cash-rich is Maxxam's intent.

[redacted] is well-experienced as a land developer.* This leaves The Eel River Holdings - huge tracts of what is perhaps the best timberland in the world, centered in Southern Humboldt County's Eel River drainage. Absolutely get a map of this land. This is where the value is.

Any average timberland in the Pacific Northwest (inc. N. Calif.) is worth ~ $43 x avg. timberland because of the high rainfall generated productivity. However, only a fraction of this land is capable of producing the fast-growing & especially valuable coast redwood (sequoia sempervirens). Most (but not all) of the timber crop

* You might wish to contact [redacted] who fought his Rancho Mirage development for years. She put up an incredible fight, losing only after [redacted] brought in Harvey Firestone (yes, The Firestones) & Gerald Ford (yes, the ex-President) as cloutful partners.

on P.L.'s Eel River Holdings is this premium tree. It is the fastest growing conifer in North America. Nothing can touch it in terms of fat board-feet of saw timber growth per acre per year. It's a damn sight safer investment than other timber species. This is important after all accountants rule the timber industry.

① Redwood species are far less of a problem w/ redwoods - They are less affected w/ weed species such as madrone, alder & ceanothus because the redwoods are more tolerant of shade than other crop species and because redwoods fast growth outpaces rival species early in the crop tree cycle. ② Redwoods are incredibly disease & fire resistant - A stand of growing 30 year old redwoods is safe. A 30 yr stand of pine or fir is NOT safe.

③ Not only does redwood command a much higher price than that of most softwoods, this price is all but immune to the 'boom & bust' of most saw timber. There is always a strong demand for redwood - even when the cyclical housing market is dead & softwood demand has collapsed.

What is the worth of the Eel River Holdings of Palco? Try 3 or 4 Billion dollars in land & timber. Much of the remaining old growth redwood left in private hands is in Palco's Eel River Holdings. ~40% of the privately owned Old Growth is in Palco hands. That's enough to control the price. Old Growth is a fine-grained premium wood, vastly superior to the wood from second-growth trees. It's a different wood w/ a different market. Experienced cabinetmakers insist on Old Growth when using redwood for fine cabinetry or furniture. Old Growth comes only from ancient, old growth trees. Yep, exactly the same trees whose cutting raises environmentalist hackles.

To pay off his junk bonds, [redacted] did not have to increase the cut of Old Growth Redwoods or move to clear-cutting. His $420 million + interest nut could have been met w/ the same level of Old Growth harvest and a healthy increase in selective logging of second growth trees. In fact, his heavy harvesting of Old Growth Redwood has kept a price for this premium wood @ an unreal (70%) low level. This wood had been appreciating @ near 2X the interest rate of junk bonds. A slow harvest to keep the price high made eminent direct fiscal sense. No clear-

b6
b7c

Cutting also made particular sense for Pacific lumber as it kept the environmentalists off Palco's back for two generations.

However, [redacted] immediately commenced to drastically up the rate of old growth harvest while clear-cutting especially in the most visible areas. He wants to goad the environmentalists. He wants Park land made out of Pacific lumber. ([redacted]) of the N.E.C. would back me on this.)

The 'Forests Forever' initiative that will likely pass in Nov. would go about $\frac{1}{2}-\frac{2}{3}$ to Palco purchases at eminent domain values, a very, very small piece of P.L.'s Eel River Holdings would pay off Maxxam's \$420 million + interest not in one fell swoop. The cash generated in $4\frac{1}{2}$ years of heavy harvest would be all gravy if he'd still have most of the holdings! He has to feign hostility to such a takeover (any poker player or Bazaar merchant knows why) However, it's what he wants.

All of the Holdings into Parkland? Using the Redwood National Park Takeover as precedent (the Courts certainly would!) — we are looking at $3 or 4 Billion Dollars Forced purchase takeover price. Its No secret That Arcata National,

L.P. & Simpson crid all the way To the bank @ the R.N.P. ^{expansion} Takeover in the mid 70's. From the start, [redacted] saw the R.N.P. ^{expansion} Takeover as his model.

b6
b7c

The R.N.P. Takeover was a very, very complex deal. Jimmy Carter's Administration pushed it Thru. All Domestic Policy in Carter's Administration* was under a young Advisor named [redacted]. This tall, lanky workaholic was the key to all things over the expansion. All other author-authority was merely titled.

Maxxam's Washington D.C. Attorney is the very same [redacted]

That's a coincidence if I'm a converg.
Is there collusion w/ Cherney & Maxxam? It's possible. However, it is not likely to have been necessary.
We were very suprized @ the early lack of environmental group action on P.L.'s Take over. (only real response from The Sierra Club was that their Legal Defense Fund might be willing

*Carter himself was devoted to Foreign Policy. Domestic Policy was left to his Domestic Policy Advisor. Cabinet officials & the whole shebang reported usually to [redacted] in effect, Domestic Policy Czar.

To help only if we paid for it!)

Given this (to me) unexpected early response - [redacted] could have hired

b6
b7c

Cherney & or other pot-stirrers. However, unequivocally and absolutely,

[redacted] actions @ P.L.'s logging operations would have generated exactly

The strong response they've received without any such collusion or hiring. [redacted] intelligence has been compared w/ MOSSAD. He had To know, beforehand, what response his actions would generate. No collusion was necessary @ all!

I was @ one of the first Earth First Anti-[redacted] demos @

b6

The old P.L. S.F. Office Bldg.*

Cherney, was, as I remember, dressed as a tree. I think that both [redacted] & the Archdruid spoke.

What struck me was that nobody recognized [redacted] when he dropped by to take a look. He did not appear unhappy. (By the way, he looks more Hispanic than Jewish in person). Previously, I'd gotten Mr.

Cherney much of his early info on

* P.L.'s Offices are now in Mill Valley - home of a great many very import antes in the environmental movement - coincidence or not?

Virtually all of the young denunciators @ Felwood Summer Take the 'pro-choice' per view. IT is a part of eco-religion. There is a hooker here. That to my view, and it's only a view, points to the letter to the newspaper that followed the bombing. The one person who makes a difference in the P.L. fracas is [redacted] (Some argue-Ment could be made for [redacted] his ally). [redacted] could die; Nada would change. Cherney could die; Nada would change. [redacted] is the often disliked, never distrusted force @ the center of restoring P.L. to its pre-takeover status. He is a very real threat to [redacted] & to Cherney. His hope for P.L. is not theirs. More important, he can make it happen. Take [redacted] out & the game changes. [redacted] is a devout Catholic and a right-to-lifer. Closely, Cherney would like [redacted] discredited w/ the eco-movement - I think! I don't know. [redacted] is a throwback to the Age of Faith - knowing the value of martyrs - he'd not make one... or condone ends as justifying means.

Somebody @ wants [redacted] out!

I'm recommending that you seek out & find [redacted]. He won't trust you. However - if anyone can use sheer brain power to get to the bottom of this kind of thing its [redacted] he wouldn't be involved, but b6 he's got as likely a handle on b7C this sort of thing as anybody.

Sincerely yours

P.S. - I will probably move back to Los Angeles. My new job here did not work out, in large part due to an energy-killing bout of Atrial Fibrillation just before I started. Interestingly enough, I landed in the same hospital as Juli Bari, not knowing she was there. My LA resage phone is still there. ☺

Dear [redacted]

b6
b7c

A couple of things following up our conversation of Friday.

I'd be worried about [redacted]

* [redacted] Both are fearless to the point of stupidity. They are the blacks that loom to what Cherney & [redacted] want and they could be targets. Both are just awfully smart... but so was Bobby Kennedy.

I think it likely surprised Cherney & Pari that the workers weren't buying their version of reality. Was there an effort to at least make an illusion of labor strife to benefit the press?

The knee-jerk liberal press will see what it wants to see & disregard the rest.

Interesting that Greenpeace paid for a private detective for Cherney & Pari. Their fears of infiltration into eco-groups are understandable. Now & the French both infiltrated Greenpeace. Oddly one of the administrators in the S.F. office has a mole written all over him (Canvass Director [redacted]) who is he really working for? My Valley Advertiser as someone very aware of staff.

He noted these folk as "having about 150 shibboleths, guess is military intelligence - but! who knows?

If you need background info. on environmental realpolitik on the North Coast, you might wish to speak with:

Former Senator Peter Behr

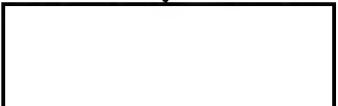

Former Resources Sec. Huey Johnson

Former Resources Sec. 'Ike' Livermore*

C.D.F. Honcho Jerry Partain

I DON'T KNOW HOW MUCH GOOD THIS WILL DO YOU - BUT HERE IS SOME MORE STUFF:

I'd mentioned being @ about the pt demo against P.L. - held @ what was then Pacific Lumber's S.F. Headquarters. Yeah.
Cheyne was there & so were 2 Eco-heavyweights: [redacted] IT

b6

was small - 50-100 people perhaps I do mention the appearance of [redacted] observing the demo. What struck me was that #1 I'm sure I'm the only person who recognized [redacted] - the very men the speakers were declaiming & that #2 [redacted] clearly recognized me. I was a very minor player & had not been 'public' in my working for [redacted] in the initial fight to stop MAXXAM's takeover of The Pacific Lumber Company. At no time had my name appeared in the major press or on T.V. in assoc w/ the initial P.L. battle. I was a peon - but I did work @ [redacted] 'cockpit'

Central! Tiny law office. In that battle, we kept seeing MAXXAM being able to apparently foresee every move!
Every step we made definately

Seemed to have been anticipated by MAXXAM in advance. It was all too slick.

Going on nothing but an intuitive leap, Methinks [redacted] is likely involved somehow. He is a Poli Sci.
Instructor @ Humboldt State. This is not a [redacted] or [redacted] - whom everybody trusts. Nobody around environmental politics on the Northcoast for a decade or more trusts [redacted]

He is very bright, very duplicitous & definitely has a screw loose. He is a very adroit liar, as ambitious as Gossus and as worthy of faith were I in your shoes, I'd be looking @ this man.

Oh, one reason you've a tough go is The Forest Service. That Agency has a reputation (well-earned) for lying* constantly to the public & in its own internal documents. As well, the Agency earned a reputation for finding ways to "get" critics and to fire employees who even indirectly questioned U.S.F.S. policy. People paint all 'Feds' with the same brush. The ^{51% now} U.S.F.S. is the major N.C. Fed. presence.

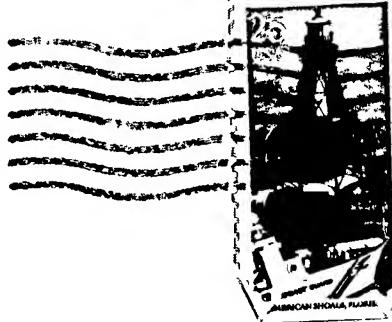

* Herbicide activists won v.e. the U.S.F.S. in Fed Court largely because the U.S.F.S. lied to Fed. Judges. The same activists lost to honest testimony from private timber cos.

Dear [redacted]

b6
b7c

Again, I'm definately quite concerned for the safety of both [redacted] & [redacted]

[redacted] log export facility in Fields landing would be a painfully obvious Target. [redacted] are the barriers that exist for what both Cherney & [redacted] would like to happen.

Who, for example, was the mysterious [redacted]
[redacted]
[redacted] who promised financing for the -led retaking of Pacific Lumber only as a ruse to get inside info on that possibility: This late 1985?

Where did all the money for the "Forest Forever" initiative come from. The signature gatherers were paid 50¢ a signature for this one. That's very high, higher than most. It was a very easily "fillable" (of signatures) petition. The easy ones usually pay the lowest per signature commissions. Did Maxxam find a way to feed in #?

Do not be saprized if you turn up links between the authors of "Big Green" ([redacted] & his partner on this) & people connected to MAXXAM. They Swim w/ the same Fish -

b6
b7C

would also authorize mass chunk purchase of old-growth Redwood. [redacted] is a lousy environmentalist - we've seen that quite well. As Chair of The Assembly Subcommittee on Higher Education he's supported policies that have crippled, and badly, the College of Natural Resources @ Humboldt State University - long Calif's prime source of environmental technicians - especially those trained for the problems of [redacted] own Coastal Westside LA constituency. Ecologist - no! Opportunist - yes!

Again, [redacted]

b6
b7C

[redacted] has a long history of environmental shenanigans. I can't imagine Cherney & [redacted] not operating together Birds of a Feather, etc.

Re: Cherney Bombing

b6

I had mentioned the Redwood National Park Expansion in the mid-70s as what Maxxam has been clearly but covertly goading the eco-movement into copying. We have some more pieces coming in that fit this clear goal.

I had mentioned the overcutting, the hiring of [redacted] and the clever covert financing of Prop 130. The new California Governor's Environmental Advisor is [redacted]. He was the number one activist behind the Redwood National Park Expansion. He is one of the very, very few eco-folk with no love for the old Pacific Lumber. His MA Thesis on early redwood parks served as much the blueprint for the RNP Expansion and that Expansion, in turn, is the model for more parkland back down in the Eel River area of the early parks. It is interesting reading. It is in the Humboldt Room of the Humboldt State University Library.

Yep, [redacted] is the force behind the Governor's new Parkland Ballot Initiative. The biggest chunk in that bill would go to the Headwaters Forest of Pacific Lumber. Maxxam will cry all the way to the bank at the staggering profits.

b7C

Two separate sources, both well-keyed into Scotia's community in very different circles, tell me of a very, very large methamphetamine market in the Scotia area. It is the overtime at the mills and in the woods. The stuff makes people pretty crazy, it takes a while, but it does make folks crazy. Uppers and extreme forms of violence go hand-in-hand. The vested interest here to be rid of Cherney & Bari would have been that of the speed merchants. Maxxam wanted Cherney and Bari there. Loggers are too smart to try to create a martyr. Speed peddlers would have had both the incentive and the paranoid violence tendency.

I don't know how you are going to break this to your boss, but his buddy [redacted] is going to jail. There is just too much on him. [redacted] would be well counseled to avoid sinking himself in the whirlpool of a sinking [redacted] ship. No question about it. [redacted] is going down. He has pulled far too many scams.. His legal staff might shoot most of the torpedoes.. Nobody can stop all of them. There are just too many. He has gotten away with too much for too long. [redacted]

b7C

b6
b7c

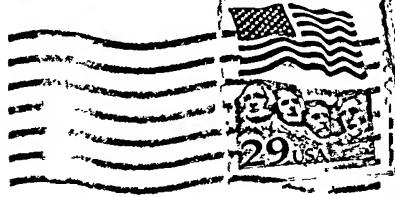

[redacted] will be in jail for a long time.

[redacted] a man long unwilling to play along with lets-pretend-all-eco-folk-are-wonderful, has called Cherney and Bari a couple of jerks. [redacted] criticisms of Greenpeace long made him unloved in the eco-community. However, that did not stop either the criticisms or their astonishing accuracy.

I will try to follow up a bit on the naming of the Maxxam Executive Vice-President as the new California State University System Chancellor. It does fit the pattern of Maxxam to lever into the local public universities wherever they operate. We knew this five years ago and had started looking for [redacted] in the CSU and UC systems. The Chancellor, who takes over in August, is [redacted]. Oddly enough, he had been a finalist for the slot before, in 1982. He dropped out of the running at the last minute to take over the [redacted] empire's Savings and Loan holding company. The S&L, after a near complete conversion to junk bonds in the next four years (97% of assets by 1986) eventually went under at great expense to the taxpayer and minor inconvenience to [redacted] and Co. Gee, funny thing, they bought the worst bonds in Drexel's portfolio at the same time Drexel was handing them Pacific Lumber at a grossly undervalued price. The FDIC and the taxpayers got stuck with a 1.4 Billion hit. ... And that is just the tip of an iceberg of sleaze.

b7C

With the possible exception of Search Committee Chair [redacted] I don't think that there was corruption behind the appointment. It was a very close vote. Willie Brown fought it tooth and nail. I think that the problem behind the appointment was the usual CSU Trustee Oblivion to Reality. Asleep at the Wheel has been the Trustee MO for a long time. I would put the chances of a [redacted] link to Maxxam (arm's length, of course, these people are not stupid) at about fifty-fifty. Even if so, there may have been no corruption whatsoever. [redacted] business ethics record is shaky. However, he is at the age men like him wish to be SOCIETY. [redacted] is a very impressive and capable man. Had [redacted] dealt with [redacted] on a business level, he would have been impressed.

b6
b7C

Again, there is lots more on this than meets the eye. The smoke is still pretty thick on the [redacted] Appointment. Absolutely, it does relate to Maxxam's ongoing tiffs with the eco-movement. The lawsuits that have stalled Maxxam's timber harvests re: spotted owls and marbled murrelets are completely dependent upon studies done out of Humboldt State University. Absolutely, the major eco-groups are lead by folk out of Haverford and

b6
b7C

Princeton. However, when they want something technical done, they go to somebody from Humboldt State. Humboldt State is an hour's commute from Scotia. Yep, Pacific Lumber's backyard. It is where California gets its Fish & Game Biologists, Game Wardens, Water Quality Lab. Techs, Foresters and Watershed Managers. The most powerful Democrat in Sacramento is Willie Brown. The most powerful Republican is Pete Wilson. Both get their major environmental advice from graduates of the CSU's Humboldt State.

There is other leverage there as well. The CSU itself, not the Legislature, decides how and where the money that the Legislature gives to it will be spent. The CSU Chancellor has enormous power, thanks to the notorious Asleep at the Wheel CSU Trustee MO. It is like the old days in the Pentagon when those who went along with the Pentagon got the bases and the local contracts. Legislators who were totally frustrated by the last Chancellor's total obliviousness to local needs, campus-by-campus, in the 20 campus CSU System, have quite a backlog of locally needed programs on their wish list. That $2 Billion annual budget has gone to Chancellor's whims. Would the Legislature play along with a new Chancellor willing to play along with those who play along with him? Do bears go potty in the woods? Is the Pope Catholic? Is the Chief Rabbi of Israel Jewish? The Maxxam Group and its affiliates certainly obtained legislative leverage in Texas by this method. We had been expecting something like this one a lot sooner in California. The shenanigans of linked-to-Maxxam folk like [redacted] [redacted] and etc. are most considerable. Not one of these folk ever had near the power suddenly given to [redacted]. We used to joke about Ein Volk, Ein Reich, Ein Chancellor in the CSU. The joke is not far from reality. Between the sheer size of the CSU and the Chancellor is Boss way it runs, nobody in academia really has as much power as the CSU Chancellor.

I hope to be filling you in further on this as I learn more. Again, right now, there is a lot of smoke still in the air.

You had asked if maybe the Governor was on the take. I realize that the query was tongue-in-cheek. However, using environmental issues for personal gain enriched both Ronald Reagan and the Brown Family. It is reality in modern California. There is a schoolmarmish morality about [redacted] One could not concieve of him making an odiferous parklands deal via his chums at MCA like Réagan or insuring that his chums in Indonesia with their ultra-sweet oil were taken care of via environmental regulations like [redacted]. Now, we have Pete Wilson. It is possible that there is something fishy about his State Parklands Initiative. However, I actually kind of doubt it. Pete Wilson and Gail Wilson want very much to be in the White House. That is what is behind that Initiative. For Wilson and his advisors, that is far more than enough incentive. The Initiative makes eminent good sense for his ambitions. Those ambitions rule his Governorship of California quite completely.

Besides, why should Maxxam resort to covert purchases of political power.. California is not Texas. It is not as easy, yet, to get away with Texas-type shenanigans. Besides, the existential prime minister of the Maxxam empire has just been named California State University System Chancellor. Barry Munitz knows how to push California liberal hot buttons. For many years the most beloved leader of academic mandarin California liberals was Clark Kerr. When that dreadful Ronald Reagan pushed their boy out of the University of California Presidency, a young English Instructor followed Clark Kerr to become Dr. Kerr's top assistant at the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education. That man was Barry Munitz. As CSU Chancellor, Munitz really has the Legislature over a barrel. There is no need for anything unseemly like an envelope full of unmarked bills or overfat payments for minor services to a legislator's law office. The CSU Chancellor can lever the Senate and Assembly in ways even the late Artie Samish only dreamed about. Again, the Maxxam people sure used their influence in the public universities to their own advantage in Texas.'

Attached please note a resolution (and Barry Keene Resolutions seldom fail to pass-the Senate Majority Leader is very sharp) introduced just one month before Munitz snagged the CSU Chancellorship.

b7C

The bitter irony here is that this is a Barry Keene Resolution. The Majority Leader of the Senate has absolutely no use for Maxxam as their actions are causing a reaction that threatens the timber industry economic lifeblood of much of Mr. Keene's Northcoast Constituency. When Willie Brown fought like mad against the Munitz Appointment as CSU Chancellor, no doubt both He and [redacted] (who also fought it) were backed solidly by Mr. Keene. I don't think that the bulk of the Trustees, who are political appointments, would have listened to Mr. Keene's attempts at political intervention in Trustee Affairs. How do you spell 'hypocrite', [redacted] I spell it like this: C.-S.-U. ...T-r-u-s-t-e-e.

Look at the Resolution carefully, page 2, lines 19 through 24. That paragraph is Sacramento speak of Humboldt State University in Arcata, California. Yes, the northernmost campus of the CSU system is a Humboldt County neighbor of the Maxxam Group's mainstay cash cow: the Eel River Main Holdings of the Pacific Lumber Company. Protecting this cash cow is the most critical lynchpin to Maxxam's financial empire. Maxxam Group is the most leveraged major corporation. The whole thing depends upon that cash flow from the woods and mills in and around Scotia. The company must either have money that has come in from forced Eminent Domain Parkland Takeovers (what it most wants) or from a steady supply of sold redwood timber. Temporary stalls on timber harvests for a few years (and a decade is not unusual for a wildlife study, some last for generations) while studies are made on wild life impacts could break the lynchpin and with it the whole over-extended empire. Parks are what Maxxam desires most. It could survive, however, just fine without them. The profits just would not be as staggering. What it has feared most has tended to come out of Humboldt State: studies on marbled murrelets and spotted owls that enabled lawsuits to stall Pacific Lumber timber harvests. A bunch of this kind of stuff without parkland takeovers to tide Pacific Lumber over while things wind through the courts and the cash cow is dead...or at least not productive enough to keep the rest of the empire afloat until the junk bonds are paid off, the Puerto Rico Resort Complex completed and etc. They had to get a handle on the CSU's Humboldt State. What better handle than the Chancellor in a system where the Chancellor has exceptional power?

As well, Humboldt State is a major whelping ground for eco-activists. The major eco-groups get their people from schools with squash courts instead of wildlife pens. However, when we look at those pesky local groups we are apt to be looking at cited studies done at Humboldt State. Even the majors, when they need something scientific, tend to go with somebody from that hoi polloi public university with fairly easy admissions. You won't find any Humboldt State Grads. on the Board of Audubon or the Sierra Club. You will find plenty writing the detailed scientific field studies in The Journal of Wildlife Management. In Sacramento's legislative offices, eco-politics is a 'Humboldt State turf. In the California State Agencies, it is even more a Humboldt State Turf. The Water Quality Engineers, the Park Rangers and especially the State Foresters and the State Fish and Game Biologists all tend to come out of Humboldt State. It is Calif. Dept. of Forestry and The State Dept. of Fish and Game that can make or break Maxxam. In both agencies, the lion's share of the technical people come out of Humboldt State. All those student Wildlife Management Majors from Humboldt State are like a plague of locusts unto Maxxam...verily, a plague that could bring great weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth in the Boardrooms and meeting halls of the Cheiftain [redacted] and his followers. Up goes the debate on Old-Growth Forests. We recently had in one corner, [redacted]

b6
b7C

[redacted] In the other corner was [redacted]
 [redacted] ...Gee, funny thing here, both are Humboldt State Graduates. [redacted] teaches [redacted] at HSU and [redacted] the Northcoast Environmental Center in Arcata. I do think that I had mentioned that the most powerful Democrat in Sacramento and that the most powerful Republican in Sacramento each have a Humboldt State Grad. as Official Environmental Advisor. It is [redacted] for Willie Brown and [redacted] for Pete Wilson.

Maxxam had a handle already on the mainstream of eco-politics (more on that in the following pages) but in California, they had to get a handle on Humboldt State. That was critical to Maxxam's fiscal safety. The President of Humboldt State is the most adroit lickbutt I have ever met. The new Chancellor's mildest wishes shall be President McCrone's greatest command. Dr. McCrone was never too fond of all those wave-makers over in Forestry and Wildlife Management. Perhaps having those nationally lauded programs helped remind him that most of the rest of Humboldt State was a mere obscure public campus...and he had wanted so much for it to be Princeton.

There is something else here. Certainly, the Head of Maxxam and the major Eco-people do not speak to each other. However, the boys behind the major environmental power groups and the investment banking good old boy net are much more alike than they are different. These are people from similiar educations and much the same schools. In both, the right old school tie is most important. [redacted] is an Oklahoma University Boy, but he has surrounded himself with folk from Yale, Harvard and Princeton.

[redacted] did not buy his way into the Harvard Club for the food. I recall, ruefully, going around the campaign desks at Greenpeace and noting where the young power elite of Greenpeace had gone to school: Cornell, Williams, Occidental, Harvard and etc. These are people largely of similar backgrounds and very strong the-end-justifies-the-means ethics. Few, damn few are born poor or even upper working class. Lots of preppies...and we aren't talking podunk prep., but Andover, St. Marks, and etc. in both cases. Complete is the contempt for working class people and working class values. It is difficult to find any of these folk who did not manage to evade the Vietnam Era Draft were they of that age bracket. They do not betray their social stations, period. However, what is done to the peasants is another story. They believe in what they are doing and work incredibly hard. Because of this belief, they have no sense of the idea that perhaps that, the end does not justify the means. They use their connections within government, which are considerable. It is one reason, these connections, that 'preppie preference' prevails at hiring time. They have no sense that the folk they throw out of work might, consequently have real problems as a result. For them, work has always been easy to find. They have connections and don't know what real suffering is. They are, in a very real sense, innocent of knowledge of the consequences of their actions. [redacted]

[redacted] has been extremely critical of corporate takeovers. They have been a disaster for jobs and the very industrial base of the nation. [redacted] over a decade ago, said of the environmental movement: "There does not seem to be anyone in the environmental movement willing to consider the economic or social consequences of their actions. Until that happens, I see no chance for understanding." Well, it has not happened. In the interim, [redacted] could have said the same thing about the corporate raider/investment banking cult.

b7c

These people do understand one another. We all remember what ire James Watt raised in the environmental circles. James Watt had had a very brilliant academic record. However, it had not been at the right schools. He kept saying the wrong things. Again, again and again, James Watt took heat for Forest Service Policies. James Watt had virtually nothing to do with the Forest Service. The Forest Service is under Agriculture. James Watt was Secretary of Interior. The key person behind the Forest Service at this time was The Assistant Secretary of Agriculture for Natural Resources and Environment. I will play a game...I will bet that you cannot recall the man's name. However, the man who created the policies that raised so much ire was an Establishment Child of Dartmouth College and Harvard Law School. He knew to pose with his bird-watcher's field glasses while Mr. Watt was posing with his rifle and freshly shot antelope. He wore the right clothes and said the right things.

There is an ethic here. It is not the ethic of you or I, but there is an ethic. When they first started breaking open the tangled maze of covert deals and quid-pro-quos behind the Drexel ponzi empire...and that is really what it was, a very complex ponzi scheme; they had to get a chink in the armour. This was not easy. Lowly bond runners were phoning [redacted] with quick tips on soon-to-be-hot stocks. Drexel was winking at the practice because these buy-ins by tipped-off friends and relatives make takeovers easier to accomplish. The turtle's shell was very hard and very closed. Drexel had wanted the arbitrage network covertly tipped off. It was to their advantage to have large blocks of stock in the hands of people totally in favor of a takeover's quick profits for the arbitrage network. Looking for a chink, Feds. found one in [redacted] who had never quite fit in. [redacted] was a very devout Jew. He was from a lower middle class New York background. He was really much more like the good Catholics from Fordham and St. John's in the US Attorney's Office in New York than he was like the Ivy League Jews and WASPS of Wall Street. He had a conscience. As well, he likely resented the folk from the right places. He had waved a virtual red flag by flaunting his new-found wealth. Such things were not done. You did not buy Italian suits. Your accounts at Brooks Brothers and H.L. Bean were sufficient for all clothing needs. (Yep, the Greenpeace Washington DC Campaign Office honchos could not be told from a stockbroker

Such was to be expected of one who had never gone to the right schools. [] was out of the Baruch School of Business of CUNY. Baruch is a very good B school. It is definately not one of the right schools. The right B schools, the class schools are places like Harvard, Wharton (Penn.), Anderson (UCLA), etc. Still, its very difficult to get into the right firms if your undergrad. degree is from Fullerton State and your MBA from UCLA. An Amherst Grad. with a UCLA MBA can write his own ticket. The class consciousness is unreal. It is the same in the eco-movement. I had mentioned Greenpeace. Compared to the Oceanic Society or the Save-the-Redwoods League, Greenpeace is blue collar. Yes, the Maxxam California Headquarters are a short walk from the Anderson School of Management at UCLA. The Offices of Hal Arbit (a Wharton Boy) are a quick bike ride from Stanford. Arbit covered the covert Maxxam financing of Prop. 130. It is a tight network. [] had had to start with a grim determination to be an Investment Banker. He had had to start at a low-status firm, thence work and wheedle his way into a Bond Trader at Drexel. should have never allowed that dreadful man into the Harvard Club. Bad breeding just won't wash. A Child of say, Bowdoin College and Columbia Law School would have stonewalled. Of course, if push came to shove and a body had to be thrown to the wolves, it would be a [redacted] sort chosen by the Boys as a scapegoat for all. They would never throw a Brown University Preppie out, fingers pointing, if an Outsider were available. The Boys would say such folk could never be trusted. Outsiders know who the chosen goat would be. [redacted] turned super pidgeon, going back to Wall Street wired up like a space shuttle.. He got the goods, especially on Milken.

b7c

The Corporate Raider and the Eco Leader do understand each other.. They are of the same social class and tend to know how to push each other's buttons very well. They would not be friends, but they would certainly have mutual friends. Greenpeace's Leaders had literally had [redacted] private line number in the Carter White House. Barry Munitz taught at UC Berekeley, much the heartbeat place of eco-politics. Maxxam's Leadership understands the Eco-Leadership very well...very well indeed. They are very much alike. That does not mean that they get along. After all, it is the Jews and Arabs at each other's throats, ditto the Protestant Celts of Scot's Irish Descent and the Catholic Celts of Native Irish Descent who hate each other so badly. Still, they know how the game is played and they had played once @ the same squash courts and sailboats. The Sierra Club's McCloskey and Maxxam's Barry Munitz probably each could give one a rendition of the obscene takeoff on Cornell's song that has been sung every year at Princeton's Tiger Stadium. Both went there. These are people who would be more apt to know the words of the Whiffenpoof Song than the words to [redacted]. They truly think that they are very noble people.

Senate Concurrent Resolution

No. 22

Introduced by Senator Keene

March 7, 1991

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22—Relative to the Center for the Resolution of Environmental Disputes.

LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL'S DIGEST

SCR 22, as introduced, Keene. Center for the Resolution of Environmental Disputes.

This measure would request the Chancellor of the California State University to establish the Center for the Resolution of Environmental Disputes to provide third-party assistance to governments, businesses, and citizen groups in the settlement of natural resource disputes and to offer courses of study and conduct research in environmental dispute resolution.

Fiscal committee: yes.

1 WHEREAS, Rapid population growth and competing
2 demands for California's natural resources often 3 engender intense public conflict over their wise and 4 equitable use; and

5 WHEREAS, Traditional approaches for resolving 6 complex environmental issues that involve litigation or 7 the vote of the people during elections are costly, time 8 consuming, and limited in the alternatives that may be 9 presented for resolving the issues; and

10 WHEREAS, Mediation, neutral third-party facilitation, 11 and other negotiation techniques have been successfully 12 applied in a range of natural resource disputes, and often 13 result in new solutions that better satisfy all parties.
14 Facilitated discussions can also help to avoid conflicts by 15 addressing issues at early stages of development; and

16 WHEREAS, As the luxury of broad choices in

1 California's natural resource use declines, the practice
 2 and teaching of environmental dispute resolution takes 3 on even greater importance, which warrants active state
 4 support and participation; now, therefore, be it 5 Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, the 6 Assembly thereof concurring, That the Members request
7 the Chancellor of the California State University to take 8 any action necessary to establish the Center for the 9 Resolution of Environmental Disputes, as follows:

10 (a) The center shall be authorized to do all of the 11 following:

12 (1) Provide neutral third-party assistance to 13 governments, businesses, and citizen groups in the 14 settlement of natural resource disputes.

15 (2) Offer courses of study and conduct research in 16 environmental dispute resolution.

17 (3) Accept grants and charge fees for service on a 18 nonprofit basis to support the operation of the center.

19 (b) The center shall be sited at an existing campus of 20 the California State University which is centrally located 21 to ongoing natural resource conflicts concerning forests, 22 fish, water, coastal and ocean resources, wild and scenic 23 rivers, threatened or endangered species, or wilderness 24 and wildland resources.

25 (c) The Legislature requests the Chancellor of the 26 California State University to establish and convene an 27 advisory task force to develop a plan for the center
 28 composed of the following members:

29 (1) The Chancellor of the California State University, 30 or his or her designee, who shall be the chairperson of the 31 advisory task force.

32 (2) The Director of Forestry and Fire Protection.

33 (3) The Director of Fish and Game.

34 (4) Two faculty members of the California State 35 University, appointed by the chancellor, one of whom 36 shall have expertise in conflict resolution and one of 37 whom shall have expertise in natural resources.

38 (5) One representative from a natural resources-based 39 industry and one representative from an environmental 40 organization each of whom have personally participated

1 in negotiated environmental disputes, to be selected by 2 the members described in paragraphs (1) to (4), 3 inclusive.

4 (6) The members of the advisory task force may select 5 additional members whom they consider necessary or 6 desirable.

7 (d) In developing the plan, the advisory task force
 8 shall solicit advice from other institutions or centers for 9 environmental conflict resolution, including, but not 10 limited to, those associated with academic institutions, 11 and from foundations and private organizations that 12 support negotiation as a means of resolving disputes; and 13 be it further

14 Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate transmit a 15 copy of this resolution to the Chancellor of the California 16 State University.

ALL TRACTS FREE AS THE LORD PROVIDES

YOU can be

DEBT FREE

Friend, I have the pleasure of informing you that all of your debts have been paid. Someone who loves you very much has paid the full price. Jesus Christ offers you complete freedom from debt.

You are a debtor to God. "As it is written, There is NONE righteous, no, not one!" (Romans 3:10). "For ALL have sinned, and come short of the glory of God;" (Romans 3:23). You owe the price of death because you are a sinner. "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin, and so death passed upon ALL men, for that ALL have sinned;" (Romans 5:12). "For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." (Romans 6:23). Therefore, because of your sin, you must receive the wages of sin — DEATH.

But, my friend, "the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Yes, Jesus has paid the debt for you. It was YOUR debt. YOU were responsible for its payment. "But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." (Romans 5:8).

There is only one thing you must do to receive this gift that will pay the complete debt for your sins. You must believe in your heart that Jesus died for YOUR sins, and that He paid the price for YOU. By trusting entirely in Jesus Christ YOU may become debt free. The Bible tells us — "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation. For the scripture saith, Whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed (or disappointed). For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the same Lord over all is rich unto ALL that call upon him. For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." (Romans 10:9-13).

My friend, won't you receive the gift of Jesus Christ? Won't you let Him pay YOUR debt? Tell Jesus that you do now receive this gift by believing that HE paid the price which YOU owed, and you can be saved today. You can have eternal life with Jesus Christ in heaven. Will you ACCEPT Jesus' payment for your debt?

MISSISSIPPI SUMMER

In The California Redwoods

"FREEDOM RIDERS" NEEDED TO SAVE THE FOREST

It's going to be a long hard summer in the Redwood region of Northern California. The public is outraged over the timber companies' policy of exterminating the redwood for short-term profit, and the corporados know they're not going to get away with this for much longer. Two voter initiatives restricting timber cutting will be on the California ballot next fall, and, whether in the form of voter initiatives or state and federal legislation, it seems inevitable that some regulations will soon be passed.

The timber companies have reacted to this by racing to cut every tree they can as fast as they can before any laws can be enacted to stop them. 95% of the redwood ecosystem has already been cut, and much of it has been destroyed so that it is no longer even forest land. This summer everything from 1000-year-old giants, 12 feet in diameter, to baby redwood trees that are chipped for the pulp mills will be falling at breakneck speed. If we want to have anything left to save, we have to slow the timber companies down now. And it doesn't seem like we, in these rural, timber-dependent areas, can do it by ourselves.

Back in the early '60's, the Civil Rights movement found themselves in a similar situation in Mississippi, unable to break the stranglehold of the powers-that-be in their communities, but backed by substantial public support both locally and nationally. What they did was to put out a nationwide call for people to come ride the buses to Mississippi and help challenge the rules of racism.

We need to do the same thing now to save the forest. We are putting out a call for Freedom Riders for the Forest to come to Northern California this summer and defend the redwoods with non-violent civil disobedience. We hope to maintain permanent encampments and waves of actions all summer long. Our method of organization will be decentralized and non-hierarchical, with each group deciding the character of its own actions. Locally we will provide housing, campsites, guides and support to help plan and carry out the actions. Affinity groups, organizations and individuals are all welcome and needed. The redwoods are almost gone. Help us make a last stand for the last stands.

Attention: Timber Workers, environmentalists, corporate executives, hippies and anybody else who cares about

HEADWATERS FOREST.

Hey, aren't you sick and tired of the way people are hating each other so much these days?

Why don't we all go for a NATURE STUDY ^(10 miles or so) hike on Saturday, April 21st at 10AM. We'll meet at the gate on Newburg Road in Fortuna. Many thanks to PACIFIC LUMBER co. for building a nature study trail.

George Bush and the rest of the police state are not invited, but they just might show up. Be nice to them. All

We want to do is go for a walk in the forest and see with our own ^{ears, hearts,} eyes ^{minds,} etc... what is going on. We don't want to disrupt anything. We do want to talk about some things, such as old growth possibly being an endangered ecosystem, and also ^{possible} alternative economic development in this region. We'll meet at the gate on Newburg Road in Fortuna. There will be maps, and guides. This flier is a very preliminary one. It just seemed like this should be publicly announced before any other plans were made. Bring your family + tell your friends. BE THERE

Children For Old Growth

UNITY

Attention timber workers, environmentalists, rednecks, hippies and everybody else. There must be a lot of us who realize that we should not be fighting and hating each other. We need to get rid of that negative energy, or at the very least direct it toward the military industrial, governmental corporate mismanagement GREEDHEAD. On the personal level, what ever happened to Love Thy Neighbor??? We are going on a

HIKE in HEADWATERS

10 miles total and out forest on Saturday, April

21st at 10 AM.

Meet at the gate at the end of Newburg Road in Fortuna. We might want to park in Fortuna, "The Friendly City," and walk from there, or maybe park along the side of the road up to the gate. Also, lots of us should go to other forest entrances and work our way into the NATURE STUDY TRAIL from as many directions as possible. The infamous nature study "trail" is HUGE, and could definitely accomodate hundreds or even thousands of us. (But when we leave let's see if we can't cover it back up.)

This is not a "demonstration" or a "protest," but an empowering affirmation of communication among ourselves within nature. As Chief Seattle said, "we are all connected," and this will be a good opportunity to experience that connection. We need to talk calmly, honestly, and thoughtfully about ecology and jobs.

The basic reasoning behind all this is that to survive on this planet much longer, we need to evolve. Quick. We are best able to make big changes happen when we all act together. Our strength is, always was, and always will be in numbers. All of us beautiful people need a beautiful place to come together, and Headwaters has the most drawing power right now. We might actually be buying it soon with our money, so we should be allowed to see it. And as for the day, what the hell are we waiting for? Armageddon??? Don't forget that its John Muir's birthday. Ask yourself. Where would he be?

For more information read the new issue of the Forest Voice. More directly, call John Campbell, PL prez, at 764-2222. Tell him you are interested in walking on the "road to utopia" hike on his land. If he tells you that you will be arrested, tell him that there will be a whole bunch of us there, and that there aren't nearly enough jails for us, even if they do catch us. But please don't let the threat of  dissuade you from going, because they might not even try to stop us. Ultimately, if they do try, don't you feel that it is important to stand up for your right to walk peacefully in the woods? Our "founding fathers" led a violent revolution over a lot less repression and injustice than we have today. But they didn't have t.v., did they. We are living in a police state and unless we want it to bury us, we better stand up to it all together. Also tell John that since he lies at least as much as Charles Hurwitz does, he should go on strike for a pay check comparable with Charlie's $8,000,000 1989 salary. Tell John he should walk out and join us! Finally, of all the corporate sponsored Earth "Week" (read Weak) activities, where is the big gathering? Where is our empowerment? Where is the very earth that we are so worried about??? It's not so much in the cities or even within ourselves as it is in the ancient forest.

EARTH FIRST!

FIGHT BACK: SOME THOUGHTS ON STRATEGY

We're at war. It's not a typical war, where all sides are fighting for power. No, we are fighting against power, against domestication. We don't want to rule anything, we just want to live wild and free. Unfortunately, there's a whole damn civilization trying to keep us from doing so. And we haven't been fighting this civilization very well.

Some of us beg it for table scraps, with our petitions, giving them our names and addresses. Some of us go out in big herds, marching in line, chanting slogans, written by Darrell Cherney and Judi Bari of Garberville, Earth First! Some of us carry signs, demanding that our enemies do what we want. Some of us publicly and peacefully disobey the law in order to get arrested for the publicity. Some of us do acts of monkeywrenching in attempts to break the system.

We have been very visible in foolish ways, excessively organized and very serious--and we've been botching it. If we were interested in gaining power, rather than destroying it, then visibility, organization and seriousness would be just what we need. But since we are out to destroy power, then invisibility, apparent randomness, and playfulness are much better weapons.

We know who the powers are that are trying to destroy all wilderness, (Pacific Lumber Co. and Louisiana Pacific to name a couple), we know what they're doing and where they're doing it. In sabotaging their activities, we can't give them this same advantage. We need to be invisible. We are interested in FUCKING up and domesticating the activities of our targets.

If the target can be hit in such a way as to make an explanation unnecessary, that's ideal. It's best not to do frequent repetitions of the same graffiti in association with more intense forms of sabotage. And don't forget that an imaginative graffiti campaign may itself be effective in at least getting people to think.

Another worthwhile skill to develop is the ability to act in an apparently random way. Demonstrations, civil disobedience, even most battles with the cops are well ordered. In some sense, they are orchestrated by the very forces we are fighting, because in these acts, we are fighting on the enemies' terrain, we are merely reacting to them. Our acts of sabotage need not be this way. We can strike targets when they least expect it, when they think they are off the hook. There is no need to be systematic, at least not from the perspective of our enemies, with their rigid militaristic mindsets.

We live best when we live in this world as wild and merry pranksters, playfully mocking civilization and those who unquestioningly accept it. To dance, play, laugh, to avoid work as much as possible and to steal from the rich and powerful, to undermine authority and domestication every chance we get, this is the life we choose. Unseen by our enemies, we do whatever we can to FUCK UP the workings of the mega-machine with an apparent randomness that confounds their orderly plans.

Deal reached in bomb case

By Patti J. Lippert
Triplicate staff writer

A local man arrested in May for selling a nail bomb to an undercover agent agreed to a plea bargain Monday in Justice Court.

George F. Humphreys, 19, pleaded guilty to possession of a destructive device in a public place — on the condition that no other charges be dropped.

The plea bargain would ensure Humphreys a stay in the county jail for six months to one year. He would receive a suspended two-year prison term, during which time he would be on probation.

During questioning by Justice Court Judge Philip Schafer, Humphreys testified that on May 2 he did possess an explosive in Burger King; that it was a homemade gun powder device; and its purpose, according to the purchaser, was to blow up the interior of a car.

Satisfied the defendant understood the charge and the negotiated deal, Schafer accepted the guilty plea and scheduled an appearance for Humphreys in Superior Court.

There, Judge Robert Weir will determine whether to accept the plea in Superior Court at 8:30 a.m., Aug. 10.

The charges Humphreys faces result from an incident on May 2 when he reportedly sold a nail bomb for $12 to an undercover agent at Burger King.

After the purchase was made and Humphreys arrested, a raid of his apartment ensued.

Crescent City Police along with an agent from the State Fire Marshall's Arson and Bomb unit collected another explosive device from the apartment at 345 C Street. Materials used for making bombs were also found.

Humphreys was charged with possession of a destructive device in a public place, possession of material with the intent to make destructive devices and possession for sale of fixed ammunition of a .60 caliber or greater.

Three other Crescent City men were arrested in connection with the incident, however charges have since been dropped.

NEWS RELEASE

4/13/90

We, followers of the movement Earth First! of Northern California, do not agree with non-feral Darryl Cherney's recent statement advocating no tree spiking. We are in a "war" with the north coast timber companies. Companies do not have rights, only "Mother Earth" has rights. We must save all trees.

"Mississippi Summer" - Come one, come all to Humboldt County.

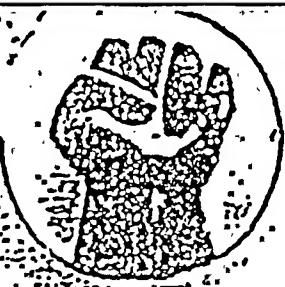

We intend to spike trees, monkeywrench, and even resort to violence if necessary. We will not stand for the destruction of "Mother Earth".

People of the Northcoast must stop raping the forests "Now". We have no time left.

EARTH FIRST! NATION WIDE TREE SHIT!!!!!!

Earth First!ers across the nation will take to the trees in at least seven [7] states, during the week of December 15th to 20th, in a coordinated tree-shitting action. The theme will be "DO FIRST!ERS SHIT IN THE WOODS"? Plans include aerial "plops" in the forests in Montana, Washington, Oregon, California, New Mexico, Colorado and Massachusetts. On the ground in solidarity with the tree shitters are special ground "piles" for all those shitters with acraphobic tendencies. The goal of these "stoolies" is to draw attention to the shit they are trying to spread to the world about the so called de-forestation.

Tree-shitting by Earth First! was first introduced by Darrell Cherney and Greg King of Garberville EF!. These veteran tree shitters began shitting in public in 1985, to bring attention to the fact they were potty trained. They sit and shit on 3'x 6' platforms suspended 75' to 150' up in the trees. Some like to shit higher than others, just to see whose shit can fall the farthest. Shitters have remained up in the trees for as long as 22 days in attempts to create really large "piles".

Jean Crawford, tree-shit coordinator, explains, "Being unemployed, and bored many first!ers have nothing to do, so Darrell Cherney came up with tree-shitting."

California EF! organizer Judi Bari jibed, "While yuppies from L.A. and Marin are shitting in water dependent toilets, our clean water and paper products are being flushed down the drain. If they took time to have group shits or shit in the woods, think of all the paper and clean water they could save." Veteran tree-shitter Greg King, predicts an escalation in tactics. "The shit crisis is so acute that some shitters will be providing a much more serious impediment than tree-shitting." AMERICA, THIS IS YOUR LAST CHANCE TO SEE WHAT ASSHOLES WE REALLY ARE!!!!

Redwood Summer

In The California Redwoods

It's going to be a long summer in the Redwood region of Northern California. The public is outraged by the thought of not working, and not being able to feed and clothe their families independently. So exterminating the factor causing this fear should be foremost in all of the minds of honest people. There is no voter initiatives restricting how many months and years a parasite can drain on tax dollars to eat and have a roof over their heads. It seems inevitable that some regulations should be employed ("employed"--what a dirty word for some) to close some of the campuses to rid the burden the working people have shouldered to give some derelicts a place to hang out. Maybe they're looking at the blood on their hands from the Kent campus of a few years ago. Students threatening lives and when self defense prevails they cry "murder" when the students citing the riots have the burden of causing murder. GREAT LOT YOU ARE!!!!?

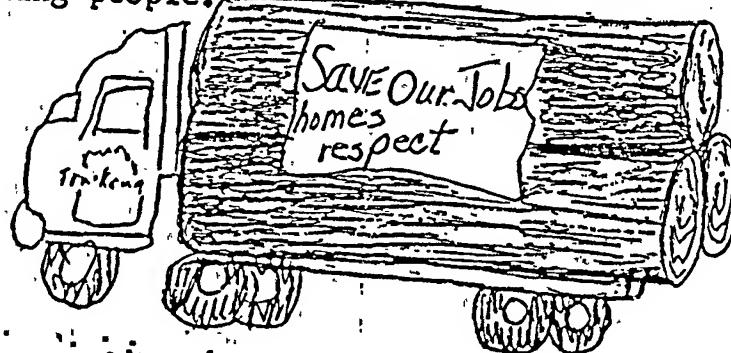

The timber companies have provided jobs for many men which in turn have fed, clothed and sheltered their families. Paid taxes also. The non-working derelicts have been racing to this area as fast as they can as they know the law has positioned in a posture of "don't touch". 95% of the ecosystem have already pledged themselves to maintain the 1000 year old tradition of honesty and independent survival. If we want anything left we will have to slow the parasite population down. We need your help so come one come all.

Back in the early days the pioneers found themselves in a similar situation for survival. They banded together, fought the stranglehold of the powers-that-be in their rural communities. They had, at times, call nationwide for people to come and ride in the posses and rule on the punishment.

We need to do the same thing now to save our homes and jobs. We are putting out a call for honest workers to come to Northern California this summer and defend the working man's job with non-violent civil disobedience. We hope to maintain permanent encampments and waves of actions all summer long. Our method of organization will be decentralized and non-hierarchical, with each group deciding the character of its own actions. Locally we will provide housing, campsites, guides and support to help plan and carry out the actions. Affinity groups, organizations and individuals are all welcome and needed. Hopefully we should not have to feed government grant students, pot and drug addicts and non-working parasites and derelicts. Help us make a last stand for honest hard working people.

MIRTH FIRST??
NON-STATEMENT OF OUR EXISTENCE

WHO ARE WE?

WE ARE A GROUP OF LOCAL LOGGERS, YES THAT'S RIGHT THERE IS NO EXCUSING WHAT WE DO FOR A LIVING...HOWEVER WE DO IT VERY WELL AND WITH A LOT OF PRIDE. WE BELIEVE IT IS POSSIBLE TO LOG A FOREST AND DO IT IN AN ECOLOGICALLY RESPONSIBLE MANNER, BUT OF COURSE TREES MUST BE CUT. WE DON'T DECIDE WHAT TO CUT BUT WHEN WE DO IT IS WITH RESPECT FOR THE LAND AND IMMATURE STANDS OF RE-GROWTH. WE HAVE BECOME INCREASINGLY WORRIED AT THE POLARIZATION THAT HAS BECOME EVIDENT IN ARCATA. IT TROUBLES US THAT WHEN THE ELECTION IS OVER IN NOVEMBER, AND THE NON-RESIDENT ENVIRONMENTALISTS HAVE LEFT, THE LOCAL RESIDENTS WILL HAVE TO PICK UP THE PIECES. FOR WE LOGGERS WHO ALSO CONSIDER OURSELVES ENVIRONMENTALISTS FEAR THAT AN UNBRIDGEABLE RIFT BETWEEN FACTIONS IN ARCATA WILL EXIST. THIS IS AN ATTEMPT TO DO OUR PART TO RESOLVE THIS CONFLICT.

WE ARE NOT AN ORGANIZED GROUP. WE ARE NOT MOTHERS WATCH OR WECARE. WE ARE NOT SUPPORTED BY NOR DO WE SUPPORT ANY CORPORATE TIMBER INTERESTS. IN FACT WE ARE NOT SUPPORTED BY ANY BODY AT ALL. WE ARE NOT PART OF AN ORGANIZED UNION. WE DO NOT SUPPORT THE ADVERTISERS BOYCOTT. WE SHOP WHEREVER WE WANT TO. AND ABOVE ALL, WE ARE NOT WILLING NOR IGNORANT PAWNS OF THE TIMBER INDUSTRY. WE ALSO DO NOT CONDONE VIOLENCE. WE ALSO DO NOT DO PRESS RELEASES OR MEDIA EVENTS.

WHAT DO WE WANT???

WE FEEL THAT WE HAVE A RIGHT TO A SAFE WORKPLACE AND RIGHT TO EARN A LIVABLE WAGE AT WHAT WE DO. WE FEEL THAT WE HAVE THE RIGHT TO WALK THE STREETS OF ARCATA WITHOUT HARASSMENT OR INTIMIDATION FROM THOSE WHOSE VIEWS OBVIOUSLY DIFFER FROM OURS. IF YOU WANT US TO TOLERATE THE "I'D RATHER BE MONKEY-WRENCHING" BUMPER STICKERS THEN PLEASE REFRAIN FROM ASSAULTING US WHEN YOU SEE OUR SPOTTED OWL BUMPER STICKERS.

WE WOULD REALLY LIKE IT IF YOU MADE AN EFFORT TO UNDERSTAND LOGGING AND WHAT TECHNIQUES ARE AVAILABLE FOR DIFFERENT SITUATIONS. PRESERVATION IS A COP-OUT, IT SHOULD BE USED ONLY WHEN UTILIZATION IS IMPRACTICABLE OR UNWISE. DO YOU HAVE KNOWLEDGEABLE LOGGERS ON YOUR STAFF THAT CAN ADVISE YOU ON SUCH MATTERS, OR DO YOU AVOID ANY IDEAS THAT GO AGAINST YOUR AGENDA.

SO BY NOW YOU ARE PROBABLY WONDERING "WHY US?" WELL, YOU ARE ONE OF THE MOST VISIBLE AND ENDURING LOCAL ENVIRONMENTAL ORGANIZATIONS. YOU HAVE A LOT OF CLOUT. WE ALSO FELL THAT YOU SHOULD FEEL DIRECTLY OR INDIRECTLY RESPONSABLE FOR SOME OF THE INCREASED TENSION IN ARCATA. IT ISN'T A BLAME KIND OF THING, BUT YOU HAVE TO BE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE ACTIONS THAT YOU HAVE TAKEN. YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELVES AS CITIZENS OF THE LOCAL AREA AND TO US, YOUR NEIGHBORS. THIS IS A CALL TO URGE YOU TO

REFRAIN FROM INFLAMMATORY OR DIVISIVE ATTACKS ON PEOPLE WHO DIFFER FROM YOU. WE ALL UNDERSTAND YOUR BIAS., BUT INJECTING NAZIS INTO THE REDWOOD SUMMER, (MISSISSIPPI SUMMER IN THE REDWOODS WAS BAD ENOUGH) HAS YOU DOING WHAT YOU PROTEST AGAINST. A SMEAR IS A SMEAR. RELAX, THAT IS WHAT MIRTH FIRST IS ALL ABOUT. ALTHOUGH IT IS AN IMPERFECT WORLD, IT IS STILL A GRAND AND GLORIOUS PLACE. SACRIFICING ONE SPECIES TO SAVE ANOTHER WILL STILL NOT MAKE IT MORE PERFECT. IT REALLY ISN'T A WAR - IT ISN'T WORTH DESTROYING OUR COMMUNITY OVER. DON'T STRESS OUT. IT ISN'T US VERSUS THEM. START TALKING TO THE PEOPLE ON THE OTHER SIDE. A TWO WAY DIALOGUE IS GOING TO BE BENEFICIAL. LEARN WHAT GOOD LOGGING IS - THE LOGGERS ARE NOT THE ENEMY. AND ABOVE ALL JUST PRINT THE TRUTH AND NOT THE DISTORTIONS THAT YOU COME UP WITH. EXAMPLE: WHAT'S IT WORTH - (AUG. 1990 ECONEWS.) FACT TWO: ABOUT THE FALLER, WHAT'S THE POINT? ARE YOU IMPLYING THAT A FALLER EARNS $625 PER HOUR OR WHAT. LOCAL FALLERS MAKE ABOUT $150 - 250 A DAY FOR HARD DANGEROUS WORK THAT IS SEASONAL BY NATURE. FAR LESS THAN WHAT A PLUMBER OR AUTO MECHANIC MAKES ANNUALLY.

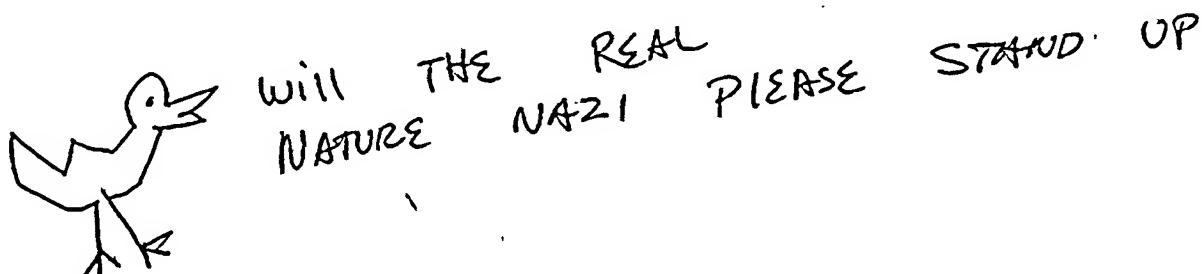

WE DON'T EXPECT YOU TO EVEN READ MUCH LESS AGREE WITH OUR COMMUNIQUES BUT THEY WILL KEEP COMING WHENEVER WE HAVE SOMETHING TO SAY, IT JUST MAKES US FEEL BETTER.

IN RESPECT,

MIRTH FIRST?

Attention Merchant/Business Owner:

This letter is in response to your advertisement(s) which appeared in ECO NEWS this past year.

Have you considered where and how your advertising dollars are being spent? Have you considered the impact the political views of the environmental groups will have on the economics of Humboldt County and the timber industry, a major contributor of dollars into our economy. Their involvement in lawsuits, litigation and demonstrations against the timber industry is detrimental to the county and many of its workers. Reduction in timber harvesting and timber-related jobs means fewer customers for your business. Informed members of the timber industry will not patronize your business as long as you continue to support the views of the environmentalists.

I urge you to reconsider to whom you are lending your financial support. Your livelihood and lifestyle in Humboldt County depend on it.

Thank you,

Lifelong Humboldt County Resident Member-Timber Industry

P.S. Timber Facts--Did You Know?

1. A managed, healthy forest is productive, benefiting wildlife, water quality and recreation.
2. Trees grow thru a process of photosyntheses in which carbon dioxide is converted into oxygen. This process declines in older trees. Replacing old trees with young, growing ones contributes to our wood supply and to the world's oxygen-recycling system.
3. Each person requires one tree a year to meet their needs, whether it be housing, newspaper, mulch, or shampoo, any one of 2,000 wood by-products. Trees are a crop to be harvested.

Dear [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] 5.28.90

It has come to our attention that you are an Earth First! fellatio expert and suck dicks in outhouses.

[REDACTED] this kind of behavior is to be expected of homos like you, since we have been observing Earth First! freaks like you for some time. Not only have we been watching you [REDACTED] but we also know and have distributed your phone number.

b7C

[REDACTED] to every organized hate group that could possibly have hostile tendencies toward ilk of your kind. No longer can sleazy fairies like you operate with impunity through the guise of anonymity. We know who you are, where you live, and continue to home in on you... but you don't know who we are. How does it feel, eco-freak, to have the tables turned?

We've also got your "clandestine" publications which detail how to indiscriminately hurt, maim, and kill people who are involved in legitimate, legal activities. Rest assured [REDACTED] that we shall not be indiscriminate in our actions against the spineless, invertebrate members of Earth First!. To the contrary, we will specifically hunt down each and every member like the homos you really are.

b7C

Another thing that is bothersome [REDACTED] is that if you were truly interested in conservation one would think that you would curtail butt-slammimg your buddy [REDACTED] and spreading AIDS, thereby conserving the lives of the rest of the normal population. Think about it, dick-breath.

Dear Friends of the Timber Industry:

There is some good news and some bad news to report, but mostly on the plus side.

We want to thank you, the LUMBERMAN for your generous support in 1988. You have made it possible for us to achieve our 95% goal for the last year. Our goal was and always will be to stop all LOGGING AND LUMBER PRODUCTION. By not writing to your representatives and not attending meetings and rallies, (not being informed), you the MILLWORKER and LUMBERMAN have made it possible for us to stop almost all logging. Our goal was decided several years ago, and as has been our custom, we keep the same goal until we achieve it, then we move on to a new goal. Our goal after we have shut down the timber industry is to rid the Pacific Northwest of ranching and fishing.

Our budget has grown with the Center over the past 18 years, this year it was mostly because of our increase in legal fees to stop deforestation. We need money to help stop the deforestation of the Pacific Northwest. We cannot achieve our goal without your help. It is time the LUMBERMAN helps us out. You can learn to live with less...the government can and will take care of you as they do us. We will be offering classes in how to write and apply for government grants. How to sign up for AFDC (welfare), and how to use your food stamps wisely. Welfare also will help with the homeless, that is you who will lose your homes because you cannot pay your mortgage payments. I personally live in my Datsun.

The bad news is that some anonymous sources claiming to be within the timber industry apparently do not like the way we print the news and the progress we are making in stopping deforestation. They are urging our advertisers to back out of ECONEWS or face a boycott by "informed members of the timber industry". Now you and I both know that there are no informed members of the timber industry. If there were they would not allow us to win the battle. Most of the people who work in the woods or the mills cannot even tie their own shoes, let alone be informed. I know you LUMBERMEN like reading ECONEWS and keeping up on what we are doing to stop the economy. So please send your money to us...we all know you will continue to support the stores that advertise in ECONEWS because you like spending your easily made money in stores that the owners think you are to dumb to know they want not only your money but your job.

The good news is that you can help to defeat such intimidation by joining the CENTER and contributing as generously as you can. We need your money and your help. Please sign up to work at the CENTER. You who can read and write, can write letters, those of you who cannot read and write can answer the phone and talk to walk ins. When you are out of a job, I look forward to being able to work with you full time.

The next two to four years will be critical ones for our efforts to stop deforestation. PLEASE I BEG OF YOU, QUIT LOGGING AND SAWING BOARDS.

We hope that you are able to help us in our effort to stop logging, ranching and fishing. PLEASE send a tax deductible donation to the CENTER as soon as possible, as I really need a raise. I look forward to working with you as soon as you are out of a job. Thank you for your on-going support.

Sincerely yours,

Dear [redacted]

I have forwarded, only two hard copies of this document (in addition to some sealed diskettes). Please do not publish it or refer to it in print and please do not give out hard copies, certain people can identify my writing style and my personal safety has already been compromised enough.

I did not forward a copy to the Cherney/Bari defense counsel, it would not be taken seriously and I would only be further compromised. If you think it wise to show a copy to the private investigator hired by Greenpeace please do so, but only under the strictest conditions of confidentiality.

It is a valid theory which must be thoroughly investigated. I make no accusations. If an investigation totally clears these two men then I have done them a service by removing much doubt and suspicion. If they are tried, then justice will have been done for Judi.

Subject: The Bari/Cherney bomb incident.

Friendly salutations to you all:

Synopsis of a Theory.

Judi Bari was the target of a personally motivated murder attempt. This person knew her and was close to her and he used his position to carry out a scheme to eliminate her from the public scene. While his reasons were rationalized ideologically his motives were strictly personal; seething, violent jealousy. To cover his act and to gain a dramatic medium for bringing himself before the public eye he made it look as though he also was a victim of that attack. This man is desperate and violent and he must strike out at anyone who threatens to expose him.

This is a theory based on circumstance and implication, it is not an accusation. I cannot develop the evidence and give it to you nor can I give testimony, but the evidence is there and the testimony is there, it can be gotten. The two people most strongly implicated by circumstance in such a scenario would be Daryl Cherney and [redacted]

b6
b7C

I will outline my reasons for proposing this theory in the following form:

- 1) Judi Bari did not know there was a bomb in her car.
- 2) The detonation was not an accident.
- 3) This does not look like a professional sandbagging job.
- 4) Daryl Cherney may not really be a victim of this attack.
- 5) Cherney had motive and psychological predisposition.
- 6) It was an inside job all the way.
- 7) [redacted] is strongly implicated as a planner/accomplice.
- 8) Missing and unexplained elements can be developed.
- 9) The doer is already compounding errors.

b6
b7C

Some of my statements below contain comments and observations which would be obvious to a forensic examiner (or not technically precise, as the case may be). I state them here only for the sake of illustrating the argument, please excuse the lapses.

(3)

I. Judi Bari's Innocence.

There is a great body of testimonial evidence to support the argument that there is a strong dichotomy between the emotional personalities and operational philosophies of the two principals in this incident. Judi Bari had too much to lose and nothing to gain by getting involved in some asinine bombing stunt. Call her inattentive, call her overly trusting, call her even an unconsciously willing victim, but Judi Bari is not a violent terrorist or murderer. She did not know there was a bomb in her car, it could easily have been disguised so that she would not notice it as unusual. Daryl Cherney, on the other hand, was headed for a fall sooner or later anyway, no one will miss him.

II. Purposeful Detonation.

This explosion does not seem to have been accidental and I think this can be proven if the clock is still intact (see VIII-A below). Apparently, the bomb was at least partially armed or "off safe" at the time of the explosion (See Appendix A). At any rate, the defense cannot contest the purposeful detonation argument because to do so would incriminate their client.

III. It Was Unprofessional.

A) I will concede that the incident does not look like any kind of government/corporate sponsored professional sandbagging operation, there are easier ways to do it with much less risk of detection and identification. (see Appendix B).

B) I have to rule out loggers, they wouldn't have the information and it's not their style.

C) On the other hand, you don't have to see a road killed skunk to know that it might be there. This [redacted] is a real spooky character, catch my drift? This boy smells like some kind of JDL reject looking for a little field action.

b6
b7C

CHECK...IT...OUT...DUDES!

I hope he's got a real conscientious guardian angel because if he's dirty and somebody fucks up and lets him get away you folks are going to look like the BAD GUYS!

IV. Cherney May Not Actually Be A Victim.

A small charge black powder blast set off inside a car is eminently survivable, especially by the person sitting in the passenger seat in this case, much less so by the victim (ask a professional explosives stunt performer). Judi Bari would not have blown herself up to gain public attention, she was riding the crest, she was on the verge of a great breakthrough. But, what better cover could the doer have than to appear to be one of the injured victims of the attack. It's a desperate gamble but what would that matter to the perpetrator if he were a psychologically and emotionally desperate man with everything to gain by it and nothing to lose. (see below and read the crucifixion section of the "Passover Plot") This whole scene has the signature of a "Guerrilla Theater" protest stunt, acted out, this time, to a very desperate and dangerous extreme.

V. Cherney Had Motive and Predisposition.

A) Daryl Cherney had a personal motive for wanting Judi Bari out of the way. It's widely though tacitly known among their mutual acquaintance that he chaffed terribly under her rise to prominent leadership while his own role was diminishing, and that he rankled at her proven ability in areas where he could only demonstrate ineffectuality. He can be shown to have been in a highly frustrated and unbalanced state of mind prior to the incident.

B) At one time their relationship was in a relatively balanced and harmonious state, and as long as he was a big fish in a small pond and had a steady outlet for his very powerful emotional needs he could blow off steam slowly and safely. But the game changed and with Judi Bari's rise to stardom the relationship became inverted. With the lid firmly clamped down on him and with the fire turned up under the pot, he literally blew up.

C) As he constructed it in his mind, or as he may have been convinced, in this unbalanced emotional and mental state, he had to remove her from the public scene, and he had to punish her also. He acted in a cold and calculating manner but his modus operandi was typically theatrical and dramatic, and his attack on her was brutal and personal. (see Appendix C)

VI. It Had To Be An Inside Job.

If this was an assassination attempt it had to be an inside job. Whoever planned the attempt had to have a detailed knowledge of Judi Bari's itinerary and, more specifically, they had to be familiar with her personal traveling habits, probably intimately, familiar. This person knew enough about her to be able to hide a small, low power bomb in plain sight, near enough to her to kill or seriously injure her. The person who placed the device had to know when and where her car or her belongings could be approached without the activity being noticed as unusual.

VII. [] Is Implicated As A Planner/Accomplice.

(3) b6
b7C

A) To slip out of the Wednesday meeting unnoticed sometime before midnight to set the timer and transfer the bomb from Cherney's van to Bari's car would mean real tight timing to hit an 11:45 a.m. detonation, too tight for comfort (I'm assuming a slightly less than 12 hour run time). These people had enough time for breakfast and leisurely activities before leaving, on schedule, for Santa Cruz. An experienced time manager would arm the bomb that morning, at the last possible instant, by the book.

B) Why was [] so publicly specific about his whereabouts between 8:20 and 9:00 a.m.? Can his story be corroborated? What was he doing, discarding something (like a guitar), putting something somewhere (like a bomb into an instrument case)? Who put Judi Bari's instrument case into her car? Would the weight of a bomb match that of a guitar?

b7C

C) Is it possible that Cherney could have given the bomb to [] at an earlier date and that [] could have placed the bomb with the timer set to go off at a preplanned time and place? Is Cherney capable of this kind of systematic planning on his own?

b6
b7C

D) The person who set the timer would have known almost to the minute when and approximately where the bomb would have gone off. If [] left for work at 11:30 a.m. what would his normal route to work have been and how is it that he showed up at the bomb site minutes after the explosion? Did he know something? Couldn't he stay away? Did he have to see his job?

b6
b7C

VIII. Missing And Unexplained Elements.

A) If the timer is still intact, and if it was a mechanical clock, it will contain a lot of information. If the alarm switch on the timer was closed at the time of the explosion, the explosion is proven to have been intentional and Judi Bari's car is indicated as the target. If the clock spring is intact and if it had been fully wound then the run time before the explosion can be approximated (see IX, A below).

B) If the bomb was hidden in a musical instrument case that would tell a lot about targeting, intend and opportunity. It rules out Cherney's only plausible supposedly "non-violent" target option, a fake car bombing on the Santa Cruz campus, because the case would have been removed from the car and taken into the rally. Can the instruments and their cases be reconstructed to determine where the bomb was hidden? Is one of the instruments missing? (see Appendix D)

C) The idea that incriminating bomb materials may have been found at Judi Bari's house does not refute the above arguments. Materials could have been placed there by him to implicate her, for whatever reasons, or he could have used materials from her house without her knowing what they were being used for.

IX. A Compounding Of Errors.

The "Demon Letter" writer could be one of the perpetrators getting nervous and trying to cover possible mistakes. Note how he's trying to introduce the element of a malfunctioning timer to deflect suspicion (clock spring?). Note the parodied religious element to the letter and the reference to "tree worshipper" versus Cherney's "cow worshipper." The "meeting with the loggers," wasn't that inside information? Was Cherney part of that meeting or was he excluded? Does the abortion theme somehow tie into their previous relationship? Does the pronounced writing style look familiar? All sign posts, perhaps, of the rebellious little boy trying to cover his dirty little deed, yet, at the same time begging to be punished.

Was Cherney's reaction to the FBI's implied accusation shock, dismay, or confusion, or was it glaring bad boy defiance? Compare this with Bari's reaction. Play the tape of the radio phone call from jail, wasn't he actually bragging?

Summary and Conclusion.

Judi Bari is no fanatical bomber, every knowledgeable observer will confirm that, it doesn't fit! She was the target of an attack, however, and a careful process of examination and elimination should be able to determine specifically who targeted her for an attack and who carried it out. Circumstances relative to inside knowledge, ease of opportunity, mode of operation and personal motive clearly implicate two people as possible co-conspirators and perpetrators in this case.

If this theory is correct, there is an unstable and violent individual on the loose who must now strike out at anyone who may know his secret and threatens to expose him. Judi Bari is still in danger, if he suspects that the game is up he may try to finish the job.

DON'T LET HIM NEAR HER!

Thank you,

APPENDIX A.

Accidental detonation in this case is not likely.

The Army trained me in explosives use and handling which included the operation of timed electrical detonating devices. My memory may be a little faulty and my information is dated, please excuse the lapses.

1) Detonation by static spark would occur when the device is removed from the vehicle at the end of a long trip. Since static charge bleeds off when the vehicle stands still over night a static spark is not likely to occur with the device sitting still inside the vehicle at the beginning of the trip.

2) Friction ignition of black powder generally occurs in hot, dry ambient conditions and is induced by a hard jarring shock or by excessive compression. Not likely in this case.

3) The most frequent case of accidental detonation, by far, as I remember it, was mishandling of the timer/power source during arming. You've heard about the absent minded anarchist who blew himself up because he got the arming procedure backwards? He hooked up the battery, set the time, tried to set the alarm, missed it, and tried to reset the alarm. To avoid accidents of this sort battery connection was always left until the last possible instant and the detonator/timer leads were always disconnected from the battery and taped 2" apart to a non-conducting surface during transportation. I'd be very surprised if the "Mad Bomber's Manual" did not contain a similar safety warning.

4) I have to assume from the above, therefore, that the bomb in Judi Bari's car went off because it was at least partially armed, or "off safe" with the battery hooked up. Whether or not it went off as timed is yet to be determined.

APPENDIX B.

This action was elaborately planned but not professionally done.

1) Speaking cynically of course, let's assume that neither the government nor corporate interests would try a hit or some kind of burn operation on their own, their employees could not be trusted to do the job right and keep their mouths shut for very long. The M.O., I believe, would be to hire a professional.

2) The idea that this would be a some kind of messy down town burn job is ridiculous. A pro would use the cover of the woods where a set-up could be done without observation. There would be no survivors, and no pro would leave the fate of a big paycheck to the questionable operation of some glorified firecracker.

3) As for this [redacted] if this boy is some sort of agent provocateur his runner should be given a gentleman's choice.

APPENDIX C.

1) In 1988 I observed Cherney, the "Singing Politician," at the end of the Jackson rally introducing a former competitor in the Democratic party primary race for Bosco's seat. He sang a long emotively performed kind of protest song, badly, I thought. Afterwards, during Gambil's speech Cherney stood dejectedly hunched over beside him, hands jammed deep into his pockets, guitar hanging upside down over his back, glowering at the inattentive and departing crowd, perhaps humiliated and frustrated at his inability to inspire and hold them. Check the video tapes of the rally, what would an expert say about this?

2) Could Cherney be described as a messianic wannabee, a quasi-military exponent of the "Guerrilla Theater" protest style whose main emotional outlet was being blocked by Judi Bari's peaceful strategy overriding his own, by her organizational skills where he was all frantic confusion, by her ability to win over macho loggers where he had no hope of success, and by her rise to leadership and fame which only emphasized his own fading role? The opportunity for realizing his great charismatic leadership role was before him but slipping away because of her. Under prolonged stress and fatigue could he have been convinced(*) that she was a threat to his messianic mission who had to be sacrificed for the greater good as he interpreted it in terms of his own increasingly desperate needs?

3) I'm not an expert observer of such things of course, but what would an expert say?

*(BA/DT)?

APPENDIX D.

1) Lets assume that Cherney, for some reason, was carrying the bomb in Judi Bari's car without her knowledge or consent. His alternative targets might have been (sites unspecified):

- a) a daylight placement before or during the rally,
- b) a fake car bombing of Bari's empty car during the rally,
- c) a bombing of the rally itself,
- d) a daylight placement after the rally,
- e) a night time placement after the rally,
- f) an attack on Bari on her way home,
- g) an attack on Bari en route to the rally.

2) I don't think he would have tried to gain her consent to a night time bombing after the rally, she had too much to lose by such a stunt and you can imagine the scene. And, if that was his intention, why was the bomb off safe that morning?

(9)

- 3) There was not enough time and there was too much risk of observation to try placing a bomb in broad daylight before, during or after the rally.
- 4) I rule out transfer to a third party because it would be easier and safer to send instructions and a few necessary parts.
- 5) That leaves an attempted fake car bombing stunt during the rally (i.e., leaving the bomb to go off in Bari's empty car), an attack on the rally itself, a direct attack on Bari either en route to the rally, or setting the bomb to go off as she was on her way home.
- 6) An attack timed to take place during or after the rally (whatever the target might have been) is not likely because traffic delays could hold them up, the bomb could go off on the freeway, and Cherney's chance of survival would be greatly reduced.
- 7) If the bomb was placed in a musical instrument case which would have been taken out of the car and opened during the rally, the options of a fake car bombing on campus and a bomb attack on her after the rally are ruled out entirely.
- 8) This seems to leave only an attack on Judi Bari en route to the rally as a logical option. In order for Cherney to have a chance of survival in this attack, and also to simplify the time management problem, the bomb would have to be set to go off on the Oakland city streets.
- 9) As is stated above, the timer had to be set and the bomb placed sometime between midnight and 9 a.m..

To the Powers That Be:

Kudos to the corporate sponsored National Security Council fortified Oligarchy for a brilliantly conceived, well engineered, and almost perfectly executed pre-emptive strike on Earth First!, Redwood Summer, and most importantly, the Forest Forever initiative.

Closely following the rapidly unfolding events of the last week, I was, at first, worried that even with the unwitting complicity of the Oakland and Federal Police Forces, you were going to try to make the unlawful-transportation-of-explosives charges against Cherney and Bari stick with only the illogical and flimsy circumstantial evidence of bomb type and location in the car. I mean give me a break — even I, with my "slim-jim", can get in your car and plant, where you'd never think to look, a device that would leave nothing more than a grease spot at the bottom of a crater, and be gone in 30 seconds, 60 if I have to disarm your alarm.

The standard issue "student radical" model pipe bomb planted in, of all places, Berkeley was a masterful stroke. But I'm afraid that not even Alameda's '60s prosecutor, [redacted] could keep a federal judge from throwing that one out of court for lack of anything substantial, though I suppose you'll have no trouble holding off those proceedings until sometime after November.

Hell, with the aid of the drumbeating corporate press you should be able to completely discredit those Earth First!ers as a bunch of armed insurrectionists running loose up here in the redwoods. Who cares if the case is dropped after election day? By then the southern California couch-potato constituency will be convinced that Forest Forever is a plot to get the taxpayers of the state to provide those eco-terrorists a sanctuary so that they'll have a home-base to launch their attempt to overthrow our corporate-colonial system of dumbocracy. Their initiative is as good as dead.

Of course you'll have to explain why those avowed non-violent whimps were transporting the pipe bomb while it was hooked up to that Mickey Mouse timer and Eveready 9 volt, and why, so armed, they were sitting on top of it for chrissake. And why an organized militia would place a highly illegal object with two of their most important commanders at point, leading the convoy, and why such a volatile contraband would be carried in their vehicle and not in some subordinate's that could be sacrificed if something went wrong.

Thank God, your scheme entailed planting evidence not only in their Subaru but in both of their houses as well. That's conclusive enough for most of us. But a suggestion for next time -- secure the suspect's premises a little quicker less the eco-symps, like those at the Mendo Enviro Center, get there first. I have to admit, the surprise I experienced was how utterly unprepared and naieve they are.

And well engineered; those idiots thought you were trying to kill them! Don't they recognize a surgical strike when they see it. If you don't mind a little expert criticism though, you should have been a tad bit lighter in the gunpowder department to avoid the danger of popular sympathetic backlash. It's absolutely vital to your cause that the public views the conspiritors as perpetrators and not victims.

Well
And almost perfectly executed; I'm afraid your independent contractors left their calling card at this one -- but more about that later, gotta run.
Myself, I plan on being wherever those Mississippi Summer campers aren't.
See you in the woods.

Dear [redacted]

It has come to our attention that you are an Earth First! lesbian whose favorite pastime is to eat box lunches in pajamas.

[redacted] this kind of behavior is to be expected of lesbians like you, since we have been observing Earth First! freaks like you for some time. Not only have we been watching you [redacted] but we also know and have distributed your phone number [redacted] to every organized hate group that could possibly have hostile tendencies toward ilk of your kind. No longer can sleazy dikes like you operate with impunity through the guise of anonymity. We know who you are, where you live, and continue to home in on you... but you don't know who we are. How does it feel, eco-freak, to have the tables turned?

We've also got your "clandestine" publications which detail how to indiscriminately hurt, maim, and kill people who are involved in legitimate, legal activities. Rest assured [redacted] that we shall not be indiscriminate in our actions against the spineless, invertebrate members of Earth First!. To the contrary, we will specifically hunt down each and every member like the lesbians you really are.

To who it may concern:

We are a group of high school students and we are all average students. We love to spend time at the river laying out in the sun under the big redwood trees. We have all lived here a number of years and have never seen an owl in Mendocino County. What we have seen is the immaturity that you are showing by spiking trees, and not being willing to reason.

We dont know, if you people have even been to school, but in K-grade and up we were taught to keep our hands to ourselves and respect others property. Well by climbing on the top of Okerstroms equipment and hanging a banner from it was totally uncalled for. Why dont you practice what you preach!

For one, this paper which you are reading this letter from is made from wood (trees), the chair that you are sitting your smelly ass on is probably wood! The books of which your children learn from at school are made of paper which comes from harvesting trees.

I think that we should be allowed to use the land as much we can and put back into it as much as we take out of it! (by planting other trees).

What is it going to take to make you people realize that your demonstrations are dangerous? Is it going to take someone to get hurt or even killed? Loggers arent going to full around a lot of them are carrying weapons, and we dont blame them either because they are only trying to make a living and support there family. We work not like you city people who all you have to do is go and pick up your welfare checks! (which are paper which are made from trees) This is our town, we know how to run it.

If you are really interested in saving the owls I pity you. Who was here to save the dinosaurs when they were dying off? Nobody! If the dinosaurs where still alive, we wouldnt have oil, right?

Is your motto "EARTH FIRST, PEOPLE LAST"?

Why dont you grow up and be human not cry babies. I have seen 3 year olds accomplish more in little time than you have accomplished in a long while!

We dont think that the loggers should put up with your shit; they should just run you over if you get in their way because you would most likely to be trespassing.

Well, I guess we have got our aggressions out and it feels a lot better. We must warn you though, next time you send someone to spike a tree or next time you try to stop a logging truck remember that accidents happen!

Have a nice summer!!!

Tasmanian Teens

~~TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN - EVERYBODY~~

"Summer of Disobedience in the Woods" sure says it all!!! We are all concerned with the Environment, but not to the extent of ~~EARTH FIRST!~~. We know the Mendocino Environmental Center in Ukiah does do a lot of good things to do with the Environment, just like we do, taking care of the land, helping to see to these matters. I CANNOT believe you are helping and using ~~EARTH FIRST!~~ as they will use you. They are a Terrorist Group who uses terrorist acts and actions, that most of us ~~DO NOT WANT~~ to be involved with.

"These ~~EARTH FIRST!~~ people are not modern day Robin Hoods whose cause is not the poor of the forest, but the trees themselves; these are ~~violent men~~ and women who engage in acts which could kill fathers in the name of Mother Earth." ~~EARTH FIRST!~~ denies their activities have cause ~~injury~~ or death, I guess that doesn't include ~~burning buildings, throwing bombs, spiking trees~~. As we all know there is a timberman, who will face years of reconstructive surgery - that isn't considered ~~injury~~ ?? ~~EARTH FIRST!~~ does admitte to certain acts of sabotage and "MONKEYWRENCHING", as in "fence cutting???" "Running wires across roads???", and other acts of vandalism. ~~I don't understand your group~~, how can you be involved with this group. No one can condone - and everyone should condemn - those who use ~~violence~~ to deny American men and women their livelihoods and even their lives. ~~WONDER WHAT EARTH FIRST PEOPLE EAT???~~ It should be ~~FOOD AND LOVE FIRST!!!!~~

I would really consider being involved with ~~EARTH FIRST!~~ you may find yourselves in the same bracket as them and TROUBLE. Why don't you call them the name their group is - "~~ASSHOLES FIRST!!~~", because all they will be bringing to your group is their problems and the trouble they are in. There are other concerned people ~~out here, too!~~ This is America and we shouldn't feel threatened and singled out. ~~We are watching too!!!!~~

~~For the obvious reasons, I will leave this unsigned. Pretty sad when you can't say what you want, in fear of your family and friends being harassed, and even worse, being hurt by these ~~EARTH FIRST!~~ people, who do use terrorist acts of violence and don't think they don't. I hope and pray your group is not involved in their underhanded tactics.~~

We're at war. It's not a typical war, where all sides are fighting for power. No, we are fighting against power, against domestication. We don't want to rule anything, we just want to live wild and free. Unfortunately, there's a whole damn civilization trying to keep us from doing so. And we haven't been fighting this civilization very well.

Some of us beg it for table scraps, with our petitions, giving them our names and addresses. Some of us go out in big hards, marching in line, chanting slogans, written by Darrell Cherney and Judi Bari of Garberville, Earth First! Some of us carry signs, demanding that our enemies do what we want. Some of us publicly and peacefully disrupt the law in order to get arrested for the publicity. Some of us do acts of monkeywrenching in attempts to break the system.

We have been very visible in foolish ways, excessively organized and very serious—and we've been botching it. If we were interested in gaining power, rather than destroying it, then visibility, organization and seriousness would be just what we need. But since we are out to destroy power, then invisibility, apparent randomness, and playfulness are much better weapons.

We know who the powers are that are trying to destroy all wilderness, (Pacific Lumber Co. and Louisiana Pacific to name a couple), we know what they're doing and where they're doing it. In sabotaging their activities, we can't give them this same advantage. We need to be invisible. We are interested in FUCKING up and domesticating the activities of our targets.

If the target can be hit in such a way as to make an explosion unnecessary, that's ideal. It's best not to do frequent repetitions of the same graffiti in association with more intense forms of sabotage. And don't forget that an imaginative graffiti campaign may itself be effective in at least getting people to think.

Another worthwhile skill to develop is the ability to act in an apparently random way. Demonstrations, civil disobedience, even most battles with the cops are well ordered. In some sense, they are orchestrated by the very forces we are fighting, because in these acts, we are fighting on the enemies' terrain, we are merely reacting to them. Our acts of sabotage need not be this way. We can strike targets when they least expect it, when they think they are off the hook. There is no need to be systematic, at least not from the perspective of our enemies, with their rigid militaristic mindsets.

We live best when we live in this world as wild and crazy pranksters, playfully mocking civilization and those who unquestioningly accept it. To dance, play, laugh, to avoid work as much as possible and to steal from the rich and powerful, to undermine authority and domestication every chance we get, this is the life we choose. Unseen by our enemies, we do whatever we can to FUCK UP the workings of the mega-machine with an apparent randomness that confounds their orderly plans.

Eco-Kamikazes Wanted

Reprinted from Earth First! Journal, September 22, 1989, (page 21)

Are you terminally ill with a wasting disease? Do you have AIDS, ALS, brain cancer, or syphilis? Don't go out with a whimper; go out with a bang! Undertake an eco-kamikaze mission.

Yes, terminally ill Earth defenders can perform the ultimate act of Eodefense while cheating the Grim Reaper of all the wasting and suffering that precedes these hideous, industrial age deaths.

Seek martyrdom at Glen Canyon Dam. Blow up yourself and that monstrosity. Free the Wild Colorado!

The possibilities for terminally ill warriors are limitless. Dams from the Columbia and the Colorado to the Connecticut are crying to be blown to smithereens, as are industrial polluters, the headquarters of oil spilling corporations, fur warehouses, paper mills ... No doubt you already have a favorite target in your own watershed.

Here's how it works: Your doctor tells you have [sic] 6-18 months to live. Your condition will steadily worsen. You decide that, rather than endure all that suffering, you'll go out in a flash — taking out, say, the Southeast power grid.

Life is a gift, a blessing. Industrial age wasting diseases epitomize what the industrial age is all about — Nature being turned against herself in a death dance.

Break the cycle! Achieve your own freedom by liberating a river or a forest.

To those feeling suicidal: this may be an answer to your dreams. If you are determined to end it all, don't slink off to some garage and intensify acid rain and the greenhouse effect by CO poisoning. Don't jump off a bridge — blow up the bridge! Who says you can't take it with you?

To the rest of us: the terminally ill and the despondent need our help. They can't do it all alone. They need explosives, plastiques, bombs. They need parachutes, planes, houseboats, rocket launchers. Aid 'em! eco-kamikaze! Though gifts are not tax-deductible (in fact, we suggest you be anonymous, unless you plan on committing such a glorious suicide yourself), Mother Earth will forever be grateful to you. We need an anonymous benefactor to pledge a $100,000 "survivors' policy" to the nearest and dearest of any terminally heroic eco-kamikaze-defender.

While eco-defenders are quick to point out that life is sacred and is not a target of eodefense, many doubt that multinational takeover artists who liquidate old growth forest to pay off junk bonds qualify as life-forms. Such robots, they aver, should be classed with dams, dozers, and drillers. A s"hit list" is available upon discreet inquiry.

One final thought from those of you impatient with this admittedly slow pace of eodefense: contributions are urgently solicited for scientific research on a species-specific virus that will eliminate Homo sapiens from the planet. Only an absolutely species specific virus should be set loose. Otherwise, it will be just another technological fix. Remember, Equal Rights for All Other Species!

4/13/90

We, followers of the movement Earth First! of Northern California, do not agree with non-feral Darryl Cherney's recent statement advocating no tree spiking. We are in a "war" with the north coast timber companies. Companies do not have rights, only "Mother Earth" has rights. We must save all trees.

"Mississippi Summer" - Come one, come all to Humboldt County.

We intend to spike trees, monkeywrench, and even resort to violence if necessary. We will not stand for the destruction of "Mother Earth".

People of the Northcoast must stop raping the forests "Now". We have no time left.

ANIMAL ACTIVIST RAID RESEARCH FACILITY

IN THE EARLY MORNING HOURS OF MARCH 10, MEMBERS OF THE ANIMAL LIBERATION FRONT (A.L.F.) RAIDED AN ANIMAL RESEARCH LABORATORY IN SORREL, CALIFORNIA LIBERATING 40 RABBITS BEING SUBJECTED TO PAINFUL EXPERIMENTS. THE FACILITY, E.L. LABORATORIES, 4003 CHERRYVALE LANE, OPERATED IN A RESIDENTIAL DISTRICT, RESPONDED TO THE INCIDENT BY STRONGLY DENYING IT EVER HAPPENED, AND PAINTING OVER SPRAY-PRINTED SLOGANS SUCH AS, "EASTER BUNNY STRIKES AGAIN", "HAPPY EASTER, A.L.F.", AND "STOP TORTURING ANIMALS." THIS ATTEMPT TO HIDE THE TRUTH, THAT E.L. IS A CONCENTRATION CAMP FOR ANIMALS WILL NOT GO UNCHALLENGED, AND THE A.L.F. SHALL RETURN TO E.L. TO RESCUE THE OTHER RABBITS IMPRISONED IN THE ANIMAL HELL. THE OUTLAWED A.L.F. ACTIVIST ALSO DAMAGED THE VIVISECTIONISTS' TRUCK IN WHAT HAS BECOME AN EASTER TRADITION IN WHICH RABBITS BEING USED IN CRUEL EXPERIMENTS ARE RESCUED TO HIGHLIGHT THE IRONY THAT WHILE WE CELEBRATE AN ANIMALS' LIFE, HUMANS SIMOTANEOUSLY TORTURE MILLIONS OF RABBITS EVERY YEAR IN AMERICA ALONE. THE LIBERATED RABBITS ARE RECEIVING VETERINARY ATTENTION BEFORE BEING TAKEN VIA THE UNDERGROUND RAILROAD, TO SAFE HOMES WHERE THEY CAN LIVE OUT THEIR NATURAL LIVES FREE FROM TORTURE AND ABUSE. THEY WILL SPEND THEIR EASTER SUNDAY EATING FRESH ORGANIC CARROTS AND OTHER VEGETABLES FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THEIR LIVES. THE A.L.F. BELIEVES THAT ALL ANIMALS ARE INDIVIDUAL SENTIENT BEINGS WITH INTERESTS OF THEIR OWN, AND ~~ARE~~ NOT OURS TO EAT, WEAR, OR EXPERIMENT ON. THE ABUSE OF ANIMALS BY THE BIOMEDICAL INDUSTRY IS SCIENTIFIC FRAUD, WITH MILLIONS OF ANIMALS SCIENTIFICALLY SACRIFICED TO PROTECT COMPANY INTERESTS NOT THE PEOPLES' HEALTH. THE WOMEN AND MEN OF THE A.L.F. WILL CONTINUE THE WAR AGAINST ANIMAL ABUSE UNTIL THE LAST ANIMAL LABORATORY CAGE IS EMPTY.

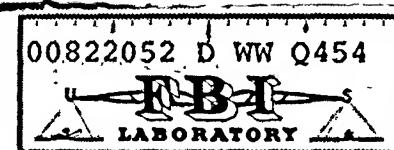

HAPPY EASTER!

MISSISSIPPI SUMMER IN THE REDWOODS: Violence v. Reality

April, 1990 Greg King

1017

Action Center
COPY

Using baneful "war" rhetoric, some elected representatives, timber chiefs, and media apparently seek to foment violence this Summer against peaceful environmental activists. Reasons for this are not totally clear. Coming first to mind is the possibility that pro-timber interests--such as North Coast State Senator Barry Keene and union representative Don Nelson--desire violence against protesters in order to somehow discredit a righteous and necessary opposition force seeking to end forest destruction by an out of control industry. So-called "radical" environmentalists have succeeded over the past few years in calling the world's attention to corrupt and illegal dealings by industry and elected officials. To discredit the truths brought forward by this movement, pro-industry forces are inventing scenarios of violence designed to taint this summer's actions. Here are some truths of maximum importance for activists, media, elected officials, wood workers, and industry representatives to keep in mind this Summer.

- 1) Activities designed to halt illegal logging operations will remain non-violent at all times, even if violence by police or industry is inflicted upon protesters. All activists working with Redwood Summer will be required to participate in non-violent preparations. Non-violence in the field will rank paramount to all other considerations. No Redwood Summer organizers will encourage any person to break the law or put him/herself at physical risk. Any participant not in full agreement with non-violence as the principal concern during actions will not take part in Redwood Summer.
- 2) Logging plans targeted for protest will be only those illegally designed by industry and approved by the California Department of Forestry (CDF). Under the California State Forest Practices Act, the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), the State Fish and Game Code, and the State Endangered Species Act, all logging plans designed to take old growth trees from private California timber lands are illegal. Several federal laws likewise prohibit old growth logging in California's National Forests. This is provable in court, but only at $20,000 or more per case, an abrogation of democracy. CEQA's cumulative impacts clause also disallows most accelerated corporate logging, such as de facto clear-cutting of thousands of contiguous acres by giants Louisiana Pacific and Georgia Pacific.

REDWOOD SUMMER: Violence v. Reality b.2

April, 1990

Greg King

1018

3) Widespread forest actions on California's North Coast result from refusal by elected and appointed State officials to enforce existing laws. State Senator Barry Keene, Assemblyman Dan Hauser, and Congressman Doug Bosco have during their lengthy terms proved invaluable to industry, allowing deforesters to evade these laws. Inflammatory, violence-prone language by Mr. Keene, et al, will only encourage the violence they ostensibly deplore. Elected and industry representatives often make statements about protesters' attitudes and tactics that have no basis in reality. In order to perpetrate politics as usual--i.e. for and by big business--these representatives seek to discredit the naturally occurring popular uprising against corrupted, special-interest policies, a movement of dissent that represents a majority opinion.

Mississippi Summer in the California Redwoods will occur because the people want it, the people are tired of watching the world's finest forests sold for maximum profit to benefit the few. People are tired of hearing lies from politicians and industry leaders, tired of campaign and business promises uttered only to advance the greedy goals of industry. The people are hungry for justice for our battered forests, hungry to halt widespread abuses that should have been stopped by people like Keene years ago. The popular surge of activist energy to save forest land would occur with or without Earth First!, with or without a Mississippi Summer in the California Redwoods. It does not take a lawyer to realize that widespread deforestation in California is illegal. It does not take a biologist to realize that industry's current rampage is catastrophic to the land and people of this area. It does not take a politician to realize that many elected representatives like Keene, Bosco, and Hauser are virtually on industry's payroll. And it does not take a Gandhi to believe that the real violence will stop when industrial forestry as currently practiced is brought to an end.

DIRECT ACTION IN THE WOODS: Industry's and loggers' past responses

by Greg King 1019

Action Center ~~Copy~~

Often demonstrators in the woods are met with hostile, violent rhetoric from loggers, who are usually the toughest and most outspoken of wood workers. During actions on Pacific Lumber land groups occasionally met with this hostility, but never with actual violence. During tree-sits activists were sometimes threatened with having their tree cut down with them in it, but of course this never occurred, nor was the threat ever brought close to fruition (i.e. a revving chainsaw at the base of the tree). Once a PL tree climber ascended a sitter's tree and poured a golden substance all over it, then he and the group of loggers below claimed it was diesel oil and they were going to burn the tree. The substance turned out to be honey. A similar incident occurred in June, 1989, when a man and woman parked near sitter's and feigned the mixing of chemicals, then poured the substance on the base of the tree. This was all fun and games. Pacific Lumber is very image conscious and seems to keep a tight rein on its employees. LP and GP could be a different scene, as they hire many more gyppos who make much less money and may feel less to lose by striking out against protesters. XXXXXXXX During one anti-LP demo in Calpella last year I was struck by a hostile logger who had previously been revving his chainsaw at demonstrators. A group of Earth First!ers was run off the road in their car by a truck driver they had blockaded the previous day--the driver worked for a company contracting with LP. LP and GP are among the more crass of big logging companies and will likely have to be watched closely during demonstrations. In Whitethorn last year members of a family logging its land lashed out against protesters, striking several people and shooting a shotgun into the air. Virtually all of these incidents went unprosecuted by local authorities, although police witnessed most of the violence. Protesters this year will need to make police accountable for violence against them.

In other states violence against forest activists has been somewhat intense. During a 1988 tree-sit in Oregon, one sitter had a tree felled into his perch and another--which was attached to his tree at the base--fell. Concurrently, a sheriff's officer held the peaceful demonstrator all day in the sight of his high-powered rifle while the loggers almost killed him. In Texas the US Forest Service cut a man down out of a tree, and when he jumped safely into another the FS cut down that tree as well. Upon landing the man was injured and he recently won a civil suit against the FS.

In all, our direct actions in the woods and in logging towns have been met usually with hostility, but not the violence one might expect from such a large number of confrontations. This Summer could bring many scenarios: with wood workers becoming increasingly aware that the real enemy is their corporate boss, LP and GP workers may be less anxious to strike out against demonstrators. Likely a few wild hairs exist who see us as the enemy and would attack if they thought they could get away with it. With such high levels of publicity, and with protester outreach to the "authorities," cops should be peaceful this Summer unless the official word comes down to inflict some damage. I feel peacefulness ~~the~~ is most likely, though I would never doubt the ability of local governments to inflict violence as a political tool or to call out the national guard to do it for them. We should know the extent of police violence early on in the campaign. -end-

PACIFIC LUMBER:

Reporter Jailed in Humboldt!

(EDITORS' NOTE: On May 17, 18, and 19, actions to save the last remaining old growth redwood trees occurred throughout the United States. In Humboldt County, 4 media people, 2 tree climbers, and 6 fence climbers were arrested, and in Marin County another 5 people were arrested in a blockade and tower-climbing action. Banners flew, circles formed, marimba band played, prayers and signs flourished...spirits were high during the arrests, even when the sheriffs became unnecessarily rough. People were upset, however, by a hit-and-run incident when a pickup truck came out of the Carlotta log deck and sped through the crowd, knocking one man into the ditch, and the sheriffs did not pursue him!)

Around the nation, demonstrations occurred in Los Angeles, Mill Valley, Houston, and New York City, with colorful street theatre and vigorous statements in support of old-growth redwoods, the return of Pacific Lumber to prior selective cutting methods, and preservation of virgin forests and endangered wildlife...)

by Tim Molt

A not-so-funny thing happened to me while I was taking photos in the redwood forests of Humboldt County; I got one day's free room and board courtesy of the County Sheriff.

On Sunday afternoon, while I was lying in what I thought was a concealed position, trying to take photos of a bunch of protesting "tree-sitters" in an area swarming with sheriff's deputies, I was told by an employee of Pacific Lumber Company that I was trespassing on their land. That particular portion of the woods was pretty crowded that day. Just minutes before, I had

MAXXAM:

Old Growth Before the Judge

The Environmental Protection Information Center (EPIC) filed suit today against the MAXXAM-owned Pacific Lumber Company and the California Department of Forestry. At the core of the suit are three Timber Harvest Plans--old growth forests on the Mattole River near Petrolia/Boneydew; the headwaters of the Little South Fork of Elk River, north of Fortuna; and the Salmon Creek watershed, north of Fortuna.

"We're concerned about the accelerated logging of old growth," said Robert Sutherland, of EPIC. "We feel that major changes are needed in California forest practices. We further said that Pacific Lumber and CDF have consistently failed to fully consider the major cumulative impacts of logging operations, as mandated by law and by our 1985 landmark court victory, EPIC v. Johnson." It was that lawsuit that paved the way for the final acquisition of the Sinkyone Wilderness.

Said Darryl Cherney of the EPIC Board of Directors, "This lawsuit, if successful, will eventually help protect the

AFGHAN HEROIN:

Drugs, U.S.A., Inc...

by John Ross

(EDITORS NOTE: Notice the pattern? U.S. aid for covert wars, somehow always mixed up with heroin or cocaine, high profits, and so-called rebels?

Much of the heroin flooding into New York City and urban centers of the Northeast starts out in remote parts of Afghanistan, where it is grown and shipped under the averted eye, or helpful hand, of United States allies. U.S.-backed afghan rebels and members of the Pakistani military play key roles in the trafficking, sources say. John Ross is an associate editor with the Pacific News Service in San Francisco, and a long-time resident of Humboldt County.)

NEW YORK--The junkies lean unsteadily against boarded-up storefronts in lower Manhattan, watching for their drive-by connection with his little bags of heroin and a trip to dreamland--or death.

In the first six months of 1985, New York City recorded 223 drug deaths, the vast majority heroin overdoses. Based on estimates by the Drug Enforcement Administration, most of that city's 180,000 junkies are strung out on a drug which begins as opium poppies in the remote valleys of eastern Afghanistan. There, according to sources on the ground at the Pakistan-Afghan border, it starts its journey westward under the protection of allies of the Reagan Administration.

The DEA says half the heroin imported into the United States--and at least 85 percent of heroin in New York, Philadelphia, and other cities of the Northeast--flows from southwest Asia's Golden Crescent: Iran, Pakistan, and Afghanistan.

But the State Department says that

As everybody in Northern Califia must know by now, the conflict of interests between logging companies and residents has recently been escalated into a potentially deadly battle with the recent episode of tree spiking along the Cameron Road out of Elk, which resulted in severe injuries to a worker at Louisiana-Pacific's Cloverdale sawmill on May 8, when the band saw on the heading shattered upon contact with an 11" timber nail. 23-year-old mill worker George Alexander was struck in the face by a

Scenes and Acts

Frozen images. Bodies on a battlefield. Refugees plodding on dusty roads dodging U.S. troop carriers, children crying with terror in their hearts.

Rewind. Headlines about war. Ten years and forty wars. Every day now 1000 soldiers die, 5000 civilians. Twenty million in the last decade alone.

Retake. The earth from space. Cut-in with faces of sorrow, faces of anger. Special note of eyes. The eyes see. And the eyes show the meaning of life. Earth from space, telescope to home.

Scene 2. Focus on the branch of a redwood, refocus upon the fish in the stream. Focus upon the eyes of an owl. Focus upon the meaning of peace.

Act II. The down and out. Eyes of addicts. Eyes of fear and sorrow of confusion and anger. Pan back to a family living room. Family taking tv together. Pan the eyes. Stoned on electrons. "Five thousand die every day," announced at noon. One minute and "Now the sports." Back to eyes, back to sleep.

Act III. Meltdown. White heat. People chanting. People singing. Eyes at peace. Eyes who see another future. Focus on an eagle soaring. Focus on a salmon jumping.

Remake. Scenes of people planting seeds. One by one. Focus on the eyes. The eyes are the eyes of dreamers. The eyes of fearless people. The eyes of eagles and of salmon. The eyes of owls focussed upon the meaning of peace.

Memory recall. Frozen images of bodies on a battle field. Of eyes of sorrow. Cut to eyes of eagle. Cut to eyes who see another future...

Well, that's the basic story. Having problem with the ending. Probably end up repeating either "Rewind" or "Remake." I can't decide by myself. It's cynicism or revolution. Some choice. Let me know what you want.

The Eyes Have It

We are being watched
By wide eyed whales and elephants,
That stare in silent sadness
At our folly and intelligence.

They are, in their animal darkness
Witnessing our dance of fear and pain
Wondering if all the human taking
Can be forsaken or contained?
Praying with their gaze on us
That love can prevail,
To slow the human race
And save the wizened elephant and

We are being watched
By wise old spies of other species.

polluted tears
And sobbing on encroaching dust,
Too soft to support their lumberin

In the Senate and reckoning of Mother Nature,
The eyes always have it!

Foreman maintains that it isn't Earth First's intent to endanger lives. But, he added, if someone gets hurt in the heat of the battle to defend the planet - well, so be it.

FOREMAN UNDER INDICTMENT

Foreman is presently free on $50,000 bail pending charges he was part of a conspiracy to sabotage power lines serving nuclear plants and a nuclear weapons facility in Arizona, California and Colorado.

Mark Leslie Davis, Mark A. Baker and Margaret Millett were arrested in May 1989 while allegedly using a blowtorch to cut the legs off a power line near Wenden, Arizona. Foreman was arrested in his home.

[Earth First! is defined by a] refusal to use human beings as the measure by which to value others. The individual human life is not the most important thing in the world. An individual human being has no more intrinsic value than an individual Grizzly Bear life (indeed, some of us would argue that an individual Grizzly Bear life is more important than an individual human life because there are far fewer Grizzly Bears). Human suffering resulting from drought and famine in Ethiopia is unfortunate, yes, but the destruction of other creatures and habitat there is even more unfortunate.

Other Notable Earth First Statements:

Bury the wood portion of your nail-or spike-board in the ground. Carry a digging tool for this. Camouflage your emplacements. Be creative. Most ATV and dirt bike yahoos won't think anything of running over a small piece of brush which conceals a spike-board.

Another Earth Firster wrote to the [EF!] journal with this idea: "I believe in killing dogs who are disrupting my wilderness experience... Arbit, 43, is founder of San Mateo-based Concord Capital Management, an equity management firm. REGAINING CONTROL Taking Health Care Into Our Own Hands

Today in America, our right to control our bodies is under attack. Gious groups and conservative politicians are eroding our freedom to our own decisions about reproductive health. This spring the Sup. Court will hear several cases which could have grave implications for reproductive rights. Growing militant anti-abortion groups such as Operation Rescue are staging increasingly frequent attacks on women's clinics. spite the fact that abortion is now legal, it is inaccessible to many women, especially those who are poor or young. Many women are unaware or unable to take advantage of their reproductive options due to geographic isolation or a lack of knowledge due to a morally repressive atmosphere.

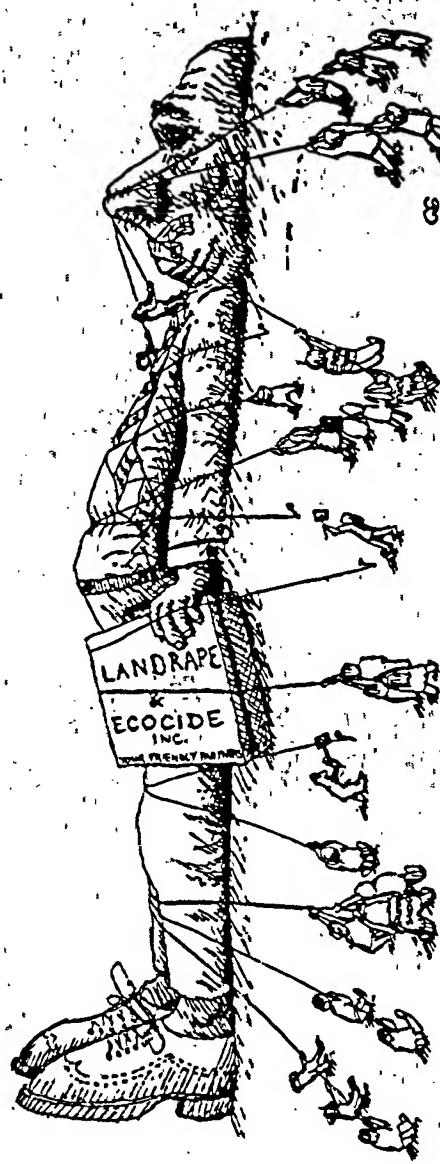

It is important that we begin to educate and organise to take control of our bodies. We can learn about alternative abortion techniques, establish services such as the Jane Collective, an underground network of abortion providers in Chicago in the early 1970s. There are many concerned health care workers who could be allies in such a program. We establish support networks for teenagers who must leave their home to deal with the court system to obtain abortions. We can educate ourselves about alternative means of contraception and abortion such as traditional herbal methods. Much of this knowledge is kept alive by women in Native American and immigrant communities, and is being reclaimed by midwives, herbal healers, and by those seeking to develop health care outside the control of the medical establishment and the state. We initiate independent research, production and distribution of new drugs such as the early abortifacient pill RU-486, which is currently being developed effectively in France and China, but is denied women in this country to anti-abortion boycott threats and the fear of liability lawsuits.

While it is necessary to demand that the government respect the right to reproductive freedom, we cannot rely solely on the state. Legislators b

Hemp Awareness Day

Helios Creed

THE PROJ

HEMP FOR ECOLOGY - Hemp is a soil building plant that is excellent in crop rotation and, unlike cotton and corn, does not require heavy fertilization or pesticide use. In fact, an organic pesticide spray is derived from the plant.

HEMP FOR CLOTHING - Fabrics made from hemp are warmer, softer, stronger, more water absorbent and last 26 times longer than cotton.

HEMP INSTEAD OF PLASTIC - The stems of the hemp plant offer a completely biodegradable alternative to plastic for many applications or can be made into either regular or "biodegradable" plastic.

WHY AS FOOD?

The marijuana hemp seed (which is technically a fruit) is the second-most "complete", (has the 8 essential amino acids) vegetable protein source on our planet. Only soybeans have a bit more protein. However, hemp seed is many times cheaper and its protein potential can be utilized better than soybean by the human body.

HEMP SAVES FORESTS -
20 year period, one acre of hemp will produce as much paper as 4.1 acres of forest.

HEMP FOR PAPER - Paper made from hemp lasts many times longer than that made of wood pulp, without yellowing or otherwise deteriorating. It does not require dangerous chemicals like wood, and has been called the "archivist's perfect paper."

music
Teach-in & Festival
Total Devastation

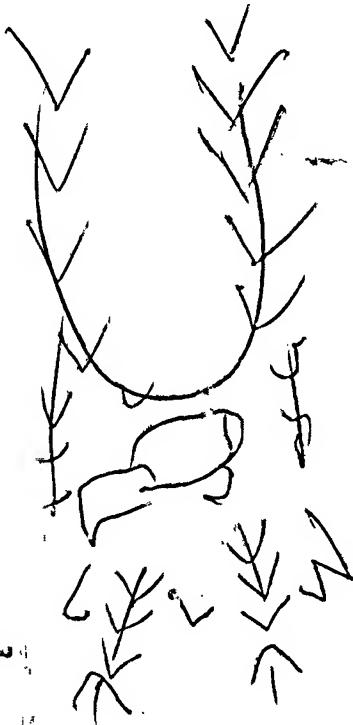

HEMP FOR FUEL - Hemp fibers are 77% cellulose and its per-acre output of biomass fuel is about 10 times more than corn, the next best source of the fuel. We could replace virtually all nuclear energy and fossil fuel by using hemp biomass that has been processed with a pyrolytic converter to make charcoal to replace coal, methanol and even gasoline to replace oil-based gasoline, methane gas to replace natural gas and any of these can be burned to generate electricity.

Editor:

Because an article regarding the U.S. Army's expensive operation to pull pot plants recently extolled the virtues of a "Christian" 17-yr.-old female gas station clerk, who, we are told, is happy they (the army) are there (Humboldt) because "She is a "Christian;" I submit for her (and your) further edification, the following quote --- with its source. X 29: And GOD said, Behold, I have given you every herb bearing seed, which is upon the face of the all the earth, and every tree, --- in the which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; to you it shall be for meat."

[redacted]

Through a curiousity of circumstances we are in possession of your letter to an Editor dated 8/10/90. It provokes our response, which we trust you will find edifying. We do not provide a return address as we do not wish to initiate a correspondence with you. A copy of your letter is enclosed for your reference.

We are essentially reacting to your self-serving use of a Bible quotation to support a contention of yours. Whether one agrees with your naive and confused ideas about 'pot' and 'Christianity', we are obliged to question your cavalier attitude in getting the Holy Bible to prove a point for you.

Your quotation does not take into account the fact that GOD, who created the World and everything in it, including your pot plants, also gave free will to Mankind; free will to misuse along with other of His works, those natural medicines to which your refer.

When innocent and guileless people trying to experience nature outdoors I see being booby-trapped, rudely accosted, shot and shot at by warring and paranoid marajuana-growers, there is no justification for it in the Bible or anywhere else, [redacted]. When buying and selling cultivated dope has become a lifestyle which exploits and injures your fellowman, [redacted] a time has arrived when your use of Holy Scripture to defend or explain the business is not only absurd, but is reprehensible antisocial conduct.

If you are merely stupid, the fault is not with you, sir. After all, God made your brains and, perhaps you are well-intentioned. If, however, you are as we suspect, using God's word as a means of rationalising gross and criminal human misconduct, then you have a serious personal moral dilemma and, in your condition nothing we say is likely to be of any help to you.

When dope use has become a social cancer and 10 year-olds are dealing pot in the schoolyards...it is not cool and it is not hip and, although sadly and shamed we see it, the Federal Army troops and the State and local cop force have no choice but to put a stop to the doper's crime revolution.

Thank you for your attention.

Dear [redacted]

Thank you for your letter. I am surprised that any purchases of old-growth "should adjoin the existing parks in the Eel River District." The dense, high-ridge-top forest now being destroyed by PHILCO are not adjacent to parks, in most cases, yet are so choked with wildlife and so very unprecedented (there are no forests like these now in preservation) that their purchase - regardless of whether the stands ever were visited by Humans - is imperative.

I am fully aware of the degree of deforestation in California. I was born and raised in (over)

Guerneville, Sonoma County, where at one time stood what was perhaps the most impressive stand of virgin forest anywhere in the world.

During the 1860s-80s my great-grandfather and his brother milled trees on the Russian River, in Monte Rio. I am aware that GP, LP, Arcata Redwood, Simpson and others have and continue to clear-cut old-growth. Today such actions are criminal and should be treated as such.

I have great admiration for the work done by Save-the-Redwoods League. But I think we must remember that old-growth preservation need not be done solely to provide human leisure areas, and that all entities working to save the virgin forests should pour energies into legislating a ban on logging them.

Thank you,

1990 Forest Initiative Needs You

This is the best environmental initiative ever! No wonder the democrats are scrambling to offer a watered down alternative. It would specifically protect old growth forests, mandate sustainable forestry practices, ban clearcutting, discourage log exports and reform the corrupt Calif. Board of Forestry. If you want to help gather signatures beginning Jan. 5 call (415) 8243841

Also, Audibon, Sierra Club, et. al. have adopted a wait and see attitude at a time when this small, grassroots effort needs their support the most. Call them and tell them that environmentalists want this initiative.

Getting an initiative on the ballot costs a lot of money. Donations, any size, to:

Congress Awakens EPIC Sues

With the last virgin redwood forest about to fall, Congress is stirring from its slumber. Rep. Pete Stark of Alameda County has introduced a bill to make Headwaters Forest a "study area" for Wild and Scenic River designation. This would create a lengthy moratorium, at least, on logging in the area. Unfortunately, Congress is out of session until late January, and the trees could fall by then. But this bill's introduction provides solid ammunition for the inevitable court case which will follow the logging plans' approval on Dec. 14.

Speaking of court, it seems likely that the Sierra Club will join EPIC of Garberville in suing on the Headwaters Forest logging plans. So why all the preparation for forest defense and demonstration plans? Because the judge may not grant an injunction to stop the logging, and we're not going to be caught flatfooted in the face of forest obliteration. One of the main purposes of bureaucratic & legal red tape is to lull the public into complacency.

PACIFIC LUMBER:

Reporter Jailed in Humboldt!

(EDITORS' NOTE: On May 17, 18, and 19, actions to save the last remaining old growth redwood trees occurred throughout the United States. In Humboldt County, 4 media people, 2 tree climbers, and 6 fence climbers were arrested, and in Marin County another 3 people were arrested in a blockade and tower-climbing action. Banners flew, circles formed, marimba band played, prayers and signs flourished. Spirits were high during the arrests, even when the sheriffs became unnecessarily tough. People were upset, however, by a hit-and-run incident when a pickup truck came out of the Carlotto log deck and sped through the crowd, knocking one man into the ditch, and the sheriffs did not pursue him.)

Around the nation, demonstrations occurred in Los Angeles, Mill Valley, Houston, and New York City, with colorful street theatre and vigorous statements in support of old-growth redwoods, the return of Pacific Lumber to prior selective cutting methods, and preservation of virgin forests and endangered wildlife...)

By Tim Holt

A not-so-funny thing happened to me while I was taking photos in the redwood forests of Humboldt County. I got one day's free room and board courtesy of the County Sheriff.

On Sunday afternoon, while I was lying in what I thought was a concealed position, trying to take photos of a bunch of protesting "tree-sitters" in an area swarming with sheriff's deputies, I was told by an employee of Pacific Lumber Company that it was trespassing on their land. That particular portion of the woods was pretty crowded that day. Just minutes before, I had

Old Growth Before the Judge

The Environmental Protection Information Center (EPIC) filed suit today against the MAXXAM-owned Pacific Lumber Company and the California Department of Forestry. At the core of the suit are three timber harvest plans: old growth forests on the Mattole River near Petrolia/Boneydew; the headwaters of the Little South Fork of Elk River, north of Fortuna; and the Salmon Creek watershed, north of Fortuna.

"We're concerned about the accelerated logging of old growth," said Robert Sutherland, of EPIC. "We feel that major changes are needed in California forest practices. He further said that "Pacific Lumber and CDF have consistently failed to fully consider the major cumulative impacts of logging operations, as mandated by law and by our 1985 landmark court victory, EPIC v. Johnson." It was that lawsuit that paved the way for the final acquisition of the Shasta Wilderness.

Said Barry Cherney of the EPIC Board of Directors, "This lawsuit, if successful, will eventually help protect the

AFGHAN HEROIN:

Drugs, U.S.A., Inc...

by John Ross

(EDITORS NOTE: Notice the pattern? U.S. aid for covert wars, somehow always mixed up with heroin or cocaine, high profits, and so-called rebels?

Much of the heroin flooding into New York City and urban centers of the Northeast starts out in remote parts of Afghanistan, where it is grown and shipped under the averted eye, or helpful hand, of United States allies, U.S.-backed Afghan rebels and members of the Pakistani military play key roles in the trafficking, sources say. John Ross is an associate editor with the Pacific News Service in San Francisco, and a long-time resident of Humboldt County.)

NEW YORK-The junkies lead unsteadily against boarded-up storefronts in lower Manhattan, watching for their drive-by connection with an little bags of heroin and a trip to dreamland—or death.

In the first six months of 1983, New York City recorded 223 drug deaths, the vast majority heroin overdoses. Based on estimates by the Drug Enforcement Administration, most of that city's 100,000 junkies are strung out on a drug which begins as opium poppies in the remote valleys of eastern Afghanistan. There, according to sources on the ground at the Pakistan-Afghan border, it starts its journey westward under the protection of allies of the Reagan Administration.

The DEA says half the heroin imported into the United States—and at least 85 percent of heroin in New York, Philadelphia, and other cities of the Northeast—flows from southwest Asia's Golden Crescent: Iran, Pakistan, and Afghanistan.

But the State Department says that

LOUISIANA PACIFIC:

Why Were Trees Spiked?

by Otter G'zell

As everybody in Northern California must know by now, the conflict of interests between logging companies and residents has recently been escalated into a potentially deadly battle with the recent episode of tree spiking along the Cameron Road out of Elk, which resulted in severe injuries to a worker at Louisiana-Pacific's Cloverdale sawmill on May 8, when the band saw on the heading shattered upon contact with an 18" lumber nail. 23-year-old mill worker George Alexander was struck in the face by a

EDITORIAL Scenes and Acts

Frozen images. Bodies on a battlefield. Refugees plodding on dusty roads dodging U.S. troop carriers, children crying with terror in their hearts.

Rewind. Headlines about war. Ten years and forty wars. Every day now 1000 soldiers die, 5000 civilians. Twenty million in the last decade alone.

Retake. The earth from space. Cut-in with faces of sorrow, faces of anger. Special note of eyes. The eyes see. And the eyes show the meaning of life. Earth from space, telescope to home.

Scene 2. Focus on the branch of a redwood, refocus upon the fish in the stream. Focus upon the eyes of an owl. Focus upon the meaning of peace.

Act II. The down and out. Eyes of addicts. Eyes of fear and sorrow of confusion and anger. Pan back to a family living room. Family taking tv together. Pan the eyes. Stoned on electrons. "Five thousand die every day," announced at noon. One minute and "Now the sports." Back to eyes, back to sleep.

Act III. Meltdown, white heat. People chanting. People singing. Eyes at peace. Eyes who see another future. Focus on an eagle soaring. Focus on a salmon jumping.

Remake. Scenes of people planting seeds. One by one. Focus on the eyes. The eyes are the eyes of dreamers. The eyes of fearless people. The eyes of eagles and of salmon. The eyes of owls focussed upon the meaning of peace.

Memory recall. Frozen images of bodies on a battle field. Of eyes of sorrow. Cut to eyes of eagle. Cut to eyes who see another future...

Well, that's the basic story. Having problem with the ending. Probably end up repeating either "Rewind" or "Remake." I can't decide by myself. It's cynicism or revolution. Some choice. Let me know what you want.

"This third world war is not, as they say, one of international plots and secret bombers, even if terrorist killings have risen over the past decade from 175 a year to 1000. A thousand deaths (from terrorism) is a piddling figure when in 40 or so separate wars around the world at least 1000 soldiers and 5000 civilians are being killed every day. There have been three and a half million dead soldiers over the past decade; 20 million dead civilians. The 40 wars now in progress numbered only 30 a few years ago and 20 a few years before that. We are, in fact, out of control in a violent spiral."

The Eyes Have It

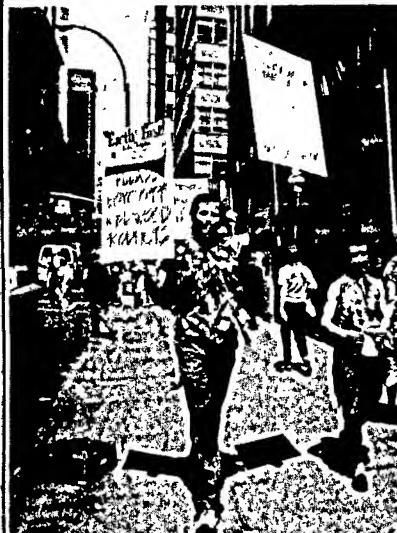

We are being watched
By wide eyed whales and elephants,
That stare in silent sadness
At our folly and intelligence.

They are, in their animal darkness
Witnessing our dance of fear and pain,
Wondering if all the human taking
Can be forsaken or contained?
Praying with their gaze on us
That love can prevail,
To slow the human race
And save the wizened elephant and whale.

We are being watched
By wise old spies of other species,
Planetary Paul Reveres, weeping
polluted tears
And sobbing on encroaching dust,
Too soft to support their lumbering.

In the Senate and reckoning of Mother Nature,
The eyes always have it!

Nevada Arrest Update

Dear friends:

As many of you know by now, the Nye County DA's office has chosen to dismiss charges against those who have yet to be brought before the courts.

I would like to take this opportunity to extend my deepest appreciation to all those who offered themselves up as "peace fodder" your courage, dedication, and resolve is definitely making an impact here. I would also like to acknowledge the hard work, dedication and loving support of all friends, families, individuals, groups and organizations without whom our efforts would not be nearly as effective.

Finally I would like to send a special hug and a kiss to all those who extended their gratitude to me for making their stay at the Nye County Jail more bearable than it might have been otherwise because that which I have done unto them likewise they have done unto me...

It's not the days we spend in jail, that count, it's the spirit we share in life.

-yours in peace,

Ron Booth.

P.S. Official scheduled date of release is May 20, 1 pm.

Reagan's Den of Thieves

Dear Country Activist,

An article in the May 17 S.F. Chronicle disclosed, "President Reagan, at his news conference yesterday, defended his administration against charges of widespread ethical misconduct." I think we have got as fine a cabinet as has ever been appointed by any president," Reagan said. "Suddenly, are we somehow a den of thieves here?"

The president goes on to answer his own question, but both question and answer are unsatisfactory.

Not "suddenly," but all along; not "somehow," but the result of careful planning and action, and far more dangerous than merely "a den of thieves." The public record shows that the Reagan administration is more corrupt than any other in U.S. history. This administration, having the greatest-ever destructive power in its hands, is therefore the most dangerous.

The Reagan administration is behaving recklessly, violating domestic and international law, creating epidemic injustice and suffering, betraying the public trust, and threatening the integrity of the ecosystem we and our posterity depend upon for health and life.

The question is not whether this is criminal, but what are we going to do about it?

Dear Darryl--

I am mighty pleased to have met you and the others in Garberville, so dedicated to the (sometimes) lonely business of defending this our good planet.

- B. Charley Hurwitz
- C. The foreign markets of Japan and New York
- D. The man with the chainsaw

If you answered A, B, or C, you have a nuanced understanding of the complex forces involved in the logging issue. But if you failed to include D in your answer, you have fallen victim to the disabling myopia that is increasingly plaguing the environmentalist community. Because when it comes right down to it, folks,

IT'S THE LOGGER!

Have you been in the woods and watched them fail? These men are cutting down trees that have been there for thousands of years, and they get uptight about losing a day's pay. These are the "good Germans" of the woods, who disclaim responsibility for the destruction they wreak because they are "just following orders" of the corporation. They claim the economic necessity of being able to afford new trucks and VCR's. Don't you get tired of this bullshit?

If the loggers really aren't too stupid to understand that they are cutting down their own future, then they should do something about it. Something like an old growth strike, refusing to cut or mill any more of the ancient forest. Then we can begin to work with them. Maybe there is such a thing as sustainable forestry, without "labor saving" heavy equipment. Maybe these guys would have to haul their asses off their machines and start cutting with axes again. It's hard to imagine, isn't it? But if the loggers really got serious about taking control of logging, we could find out what the possibilities are.

But so long as they continue to obediently level the forests, such speculation seems worthless. Some environmental "organizers" have recently swooned over the romance of radical labor rhetoric. Nevermind that almost all labor is about using up "resources" to feed consumerism, and that one of the best examples of this is Logging. Logging plunders rural communities to enrich distant cities, and rewards local residents with lives at hard labor and a little pocket money. Why celebrate it? Haven't you found out yet that work stinks? If we are going to save the woods we are going to have to end logging. No more exports to Houston or L. A. No more diesels in the forests. No more selling the backyard for a few day's fun.

Sorry to spoil the honeymoon, folks, but the baby's dying. Let's get out of bed and do something about it.

The non-nonviolent guidelines.

1. Maintain an attitude.
2. Do not carry weapons unless you know how to use them.
3. If you don't have a good story, run.

The problem of nonviolence.

Nonviolence has plagued us for decades. Has it ever brought us closer to wildness, freedom, and peace? Certainly the world has only grown more civilized, controlled and industrial. Nonviolence as practiced in this country only reaffirms the disempowerment of the individual, the glorification of suffering, the privilege of the white uppermiddle class, and the habits of obedience to authority in all its forms. We need to disassemble civilization, and do it soon. Clearly nonviolence isn't the answer. Its time to seek creative alternatives.

The non-nonviolent response.

Non-nonviolence seeks to undo the damaging passivity that nonviolence has wrought. N-nv is dynamic and creative. Rather than waiting to deliver yourself into the hands of the cops, you run. Stay free and do more. N-nv avoids rules and so never divides people into the true practitioners vs. the infidels. In non-nonviolence, nothing is sacred. We will do what we need to, in the words of the great non-nonviolent activist Malcolm X "by whatever means necessary".

The tradition of non-nonviolence.

Non-nonviolence has been practiced for centuries, perhaps millenia, by disempowered people seeking to assert their autonomy. In this century the peoples of many countries have used non-nv to end colonialism. In India, for example, radical groups blew up trains, killed British military personnel, and sabotaged British business and industry until finally the British withdrew and India was autonomous. In our own country many groups, from the revolutionary soldiers to the wobblies, practiced non-nonviolence. One of the most striking and effective examples of recent times was the civil rights /black power movement. Through the practice of n-nv in groups such as the Panthers and as a whole, blacks were able to undo much of the suppression which they had suffered non-violently for years.

Non-nonviolence and You.

Though non-nonviolence can be practiced in small groups and perhaps ultimately as a mass movement, it basically depends on individual action. It is people like you practicing n-nv, who taken collectively can make a difference. Find out about the techniques of non-nonviolence, and think up new ones. Then go into the forest, or the desert, or the officebuilding, and do what you need to do. You don't need to tell anyone about it, because non-nonviolent action isn't dependent on media coverage or public image. It depends simply on the strength and truth of the action, and you.

"NO ONE WAY WORKS; it will take all of us shoving at the thing from all sides to bring it down."

EARTH FIRST! IS A TIMBER INDUSTRY FRONT GROUP:

ECO-WAR IS CLASS WAR SPECIAL REPORT!

Documents recently obtained by EWCW informants "high up" in a not-to-be-revealed multinational timber corporation demonstrate conclusively that the radical ecology group known as "Earth First!" was created by a coalition of 5 timber corporations in order to divert worker sentiment in a "pro-company" direction. The startling report gives the first positive evidence of what many have suspected for some time and helps explain some of the seemingly incongruous actions and statements by members of that group.

Following are key passages excerpted from the 15-page document entitled: Project Greenwash; the creation of false opposition in the maintenance of an obedient workforce.

"...combining modern re-evaluations of the propaganda needed for mass obedience during wartime mobilizations with the latest advances in contemporary workplace motivational psychology...it may be possible to redirect and channel labor resentment and rising anti-corporate sentiment in the dependent communities in a direction favorable to the continuance of acceptable or increasing profit margins up till the time of total capital liquidation and final pull-out in the Northwest timber region." "...into the '80's...we can predict a re-vitalization of movements for community autonomy, demands for greater workforce participation in manners traditionally in control of Management, a decline in motivation and allegiance to Company goals along with other factors all combining into an alarming overall decline in production and a withering and attrition of the absolute hegemony enjoyed by Capital in workers' daily lives.

... If not controlled through periodic "pressure valve"-type releases and distractions, such unrest could lead to more vocal ferment and ultimately to actual ruptures in the order and routine of production so imperative to industry." (EWCWnote: Throughout history and around the world people have refused their roles as servants and engaged in workplace sabotage, theft, slowdowns, occupations and large scale insurrections in order to re-establish their communities, ties to the land, traditions and independence).

"...traditions of self-reliance, community and personal strength and integrity...can be molded into support for Capital. ... Through precise use of threats, "propaganda and fear-psychology the workforce can be convinced that; 1) dependence on Capital is independence; 2) acquiescence to company goals is solidarity; 3) a lifetime of wage-labor is freedom; 4) 2000 year-old trees are renewable. In short, any issues can be resolved with a good enough public relations campaign."

"Issues and Proposed Solutions"

1) Workers view corporate and government power as an "outside force" controlling their lives.

Solution: Set up Earth First! to appear as OUTSIDERS to "draw the fire" and thus allow decisions from Wall Street and Headquarters to proceed uninhibited.

2) Workforce and community concerned about overcutting and declining timber base.

Solution: Use fear and propaganda to convince workforce that decline due to actions of False Group (Earth First!). Set up group with occasional well-publicised "victories" as needed to project an image of Group as powerful enormously out of proportion to reality.

3) Workforce and community expressing dissent over automation and export-related job loss.

Solution: Earth First! must be very "anti-worker" and portrayed as always on welfare in order to facilitate transfer of job-loss fears to this group and away from Management. Create a Jobs First! vs Earth First! mentality as needed to divert attention from automation.

"...important that community-based emotions not be allowed to exceed...(our) ability to control them.. "controlled boil" effect... too much could lead to negative backlash as deep-seated desires for freedom and self-determination rise uncontrollably and overflow against the Company."

What seems to have happened is that too many people took Earth First! seriously--radical talk brought radical people! Judi and Daryl began to destroy the false fraternity between workers and the companies by building alliances between workers and ecologists and so had to be eliminated. Luckily the plan backfired and generated even more support... Dave Foreman--an agent of the corporations(note Right wing, capitalist tendencies...)--tried to purge unruly and counterproductive elements (anarchists, feminists, etc.) from the corporate Plan and revive old allegiance to tree spiking and other divisive aspects of the original Greenwash scheme. When all this failed to re-fan worker fears and get Greenwash back on track, the powerline sabotage caper was set up... Foreman, unable to maintain control, and proving entirely ineffectual in stopping the unforeseen shift in Earth First!, has now been forced to resign. His denunciation of EFI as "leftist" can be seen as one last shot at thwarting a corporate scheme gone bad. Workers can now see the real villains for who they are and take action accordingly. Who is the real power? Who are the real OUTSIDERS? Earth Firstiers who've joined this scheme unawares need to question the basis of your ideas and tactics. Are you inadvertently helping the timber barons? Support radical community action for sovereignty and independence. Learn the truth about the local timber communities and history and try to see why pride and integrity are so strong here. This can form the basis for REAL collaboration and struggle against the common enemy.

SPEAKING THE RUDE TRUTH

The Yellow...

One of the best things about people in small Northwest farming and timber towns, and what is difficult to find anywhere else these days, is the sense of self-respect and help-your-neighbor attitude that one finds here. That's why it pains us to see so many otherwise decent people get suckered into the "Yellow Ribbon Coalition" nonsense and be used by these hucksters for their own ends. Don't kid yourself--"Yellow Ribbon" was invented by a homes, our sense of community connectedness, our trees, our earth. And the only thing wrong with being a "green horn" is that many never grow out of it. Redwood summer campers: you've got yourself in the middle of a fight--don't run out now! Your "support for timber workers" rhetoric rings hollow if not followed by action. If a group of fallers strikes and refuses to clearcut for Maxxon (like some of you have suggested they should do) would YOU come out and blockade the sheriffs when the eviction notice comes from the bank? Would you help face down the National Guard if workers took over a mill? Would you be here day-in and day-out providing necessary support FOR AS LONG AS IT TAKES if things really broke open and we began the process of really creating a new way of life for everyone? Will you be willing to give up your comfortable lives to really make changes? NO? Then Fuck Off!! Yes? Then prove it, now! It's up to you.

TELL THE TRUTH --AND RUN!

There is no freedom OF speech without the freedom FROM repression. In these days of bombings, beatings, death threats and tension, people must watch what they say. If there's one thing that Maxxon, Earth First!, Sierra Club, Yellow Ribbon Coalition and FBI could unite on, it would be to shut us up! Not joining a given faction means that they all hate you. Anonymity is not cowardice, as many will accuse, but simply common sense. Would you empty-handedly face a much larger and well-armed opponent? Martyrdom is for saints and heroes, but it's the living we're concerned with. We do think the pen (and copy machine) is mightier than the sword, but we're not about to put that principle to the test just yet. By remaining anonymous, our views cannot become a personality or allegiance question (as with Yellow Ribbon or Earth First!) and must be debated on their content alone. This, in fact, has a long and honorable tradition in early U.S. history. Many of the great controversial writings of the movement for U.S. independence from England were pseudonymous or anonymous and this was an accepted practice--except to the Brittish rulers who dearly wished to know the authors' identities! Do you wish to contact us or comment on the contents of this sheet? Then do your own flyer and post it up widely--we'll see it eventually. Do you hate what we say? Then you're one who probably should! Do you agree with us? Then spread these ideas and develop your own. Social change must arise naturally and organically from the desires of those involved--leaders, representatives, organizations, priests and ideologies will always sell you down the river in the end. Dare to speak out. Organize. Take action.

Chuckie Hurwitz sez that he believes in the Golden Rule, namely, "whoever has the gold, rules." To this, Class War replies, "As you have done unto others, they will do unto you!" We never sleep, we never forget...

Class War--it's actually closer than you think!

well-paid public-relations firm hired by the timber industry. It's the COMMUNITY and INDIVIDUALS that really matter. The INDUSTRY has built itself by economically and ecologically exploiting the communities and land and now the exploitation is becoming political. Make no mistake, the corporations and politicians are using the Yellow Ribbon rhetoric to invoke community sentiment and traditions that they are not part of and did not create in order to further THEIR OWN ends. WHOSE HISTORY IS IT ANYWAY? Since when are Merlo, Hurwitz or any of their middle-management toadies part of this community? All they care about is money. The gyppos, while part of the community, are caught in the middle and are forced to unfortunately side with economic concerns even when these conflict with the real needs of the community. When the last big old trees are shipped overseas or made into yuppie hot tubs and the last mill is sent to Mexico and the last paycheck is spent... Where do you think all the "pro-timber" politicians and corporate executives will be? It's only too ironic that yellow--the color of the industry's ribbons--is the color of cowardice.

Can LP's Merlo look the residents of Potter Valley and elsewhere in the eye as he pockets his millions made by shipping the mill to Mexico and then breaking their union there? Will PL's Campbell or his Maxxam master Hurwitz loan me one of their spare summer homes when I'm evicted? They're always talking about the homeless--what do you think the industry would do if we took some company lumber (that many people produced but can't even afford!) to build a family a house? Or, if we banded together against the politicians, cops and bankers to stop timber workers' families from being evicted? They'd call in the National Guard!! Bunch of bloody cowards, all of them! What's needed now is not hokey slogans and symbols, but real solidarity and strength and a reaffirmation of mutual aid and community integrity. As the noted author Emerson said, "I am ashamed to think how easily we capitulate to badges and names, to large societies and dead institutions. We ought to go upright and vital, and speak the rude truth in all ways."

...and the green.

Green fists, Big Green, Greenpeace, greenshirts, Green party, green this, green that, green everything... and "greenhorns." Hundreds of them. Swarming around the woods of the Northwest, here to save the world for us. Sure "green" stands for trees and a living earth, but here also the irony is so fitting as to appear a pre-meditated practical joke. For green is also the color of newcomers, gullability, inexperience. For all their self-righteous language and idealism, most "environmentalists" and especially Earth Firsters and Redwood Summer protesters are woefully ignorant of the much larger political, social and economic dynamics and the roots of the conflicts shaping up in our little Redwood Bummer of a Banana Republic. It's so nice and easy to come here for two weeks on school break and do your part to save the world knowing full well that you have a nice stable life to return to. (Sorry if I'm over generalizing, but it's widely true). "Redwood Summer" is the "politics of the comfort zone" as one writer termed such single-issue, white middle-class protest politics. It's easy to get arrested for such a noble cause knowing full well that you can return to the university in September to pursue your career as one of society's future managers, planners or psychologists. Or, alternately, to go off and live the hip life as an eco-groovy poor-rich drop-out or as a determined politico, fighting for endless causes and ever more media coverage. But you'd feel a bit different if YOUR world was crashing down around you! For many, there is no comfort zone anymore. We're fighting because we have no choice.

Being afraid is not cowardice-- we're all afraid: of losing our

Eco-Kamikazes Wanted

Reprinted from Earth First! Journal, September 22, 1989, (page 21)

Are you terminally ill with a wasting disease? Do you have AIDS, ALS, brain cancer, or syphilis? Don't go out with a whimper; go out with a bang! Undertake an eco-kamikaze mission.

Yes, terminally ill Earth defenders can perform the ultimate act of Eodefense while cheating the Grim Reaper of all the wasting and suffering that precedes these hideous, industrial age deaths.

Seek martyrdom at Glen Canyon Dam. Blow up yourself and that monstrosity. Free the Wild Colorado!

The possibilities for terminally ill warriors are limitless. Dams from the Columbia and the Colorado to the Connecticut are crying to be blown to smithereens, as are industrial polluters, the headquarters of oil spilling corporations, fur warehouses, paper mills ... No doubt you already have a favorite target in your own watershed.

Here's how it works: Your doctor tells you have [sic] 6-18 months to live. Your condition will steadily worsen. You decide that, rather than endure all that suffering, you'll go out in a flash — taking out, say, the Southeast power grid.

Life is a gift, a blessing. Industrial age wasting diseases epitomize what the industrial age is all about — Nature being turned against herself in a death dance.

Break the cycle! Achieve your own freedom by liberating a river or a forest.

To those feeling suicidal: this may be an answer to your dreams. If you are determined to end it all, don't slink off to some garage and intensify acid rain and the greenhouse effect by CO poisoning. Don't jump off a bridge — blow up the bridge! Who says you can't take it with you?

To the rest of us: the terminally ill and the despondent need our help. They can't do it all alone. They need explosives, plastiques, bombs. They need parachutes, planes, houseboats, rocket launchers. Aid an eco-kamikaze. Though gifts are not tax-deductible (in fact, we suggest you be anonymous, unless you plan on committing such a glorious suicide yourself), Mother Earth will forever be grateful to you. We need an anonymous benefactor to pledge a $100,000 "survivors policy" to the nearest and dearest of any terminally heroic eco-kamikaze-defender.

While eco-defenders are quick to point out that life is sacred and is not a target of eodefense, many doubt that multinational takeover artists who liquidate old growth forest to pay off junk bonds qualify as life-forms. Such robotoids, they aver, should be classed with dams, dozers, and drillers. A s"hit list" is available upon discreet inquiry.

One final thought: from those of you impatient with this admittedly slow pace of eodefense, contributions are urgently solicited for scientific research on a species specific virus that will eliminate Homo shiticus from the planet. Only an absolutely species specific virus should be set loose. Otherwise, it will be just another technological fix. Remember, Equal Rights for All Other Species!

The report about the ad in the Washington Post which listed salaries paid executives of several environmental organizations is best explained by the words used in the ad by [redacted] [redacted] National Inland Association and Multiple-Use Land Alliance.

b6
b7C

It is difficult to imagine the state of mind of someone who considers organizations, such as the National Audubon Society, "radical environmentalists" or "environmental fanatics".

The ad is trying to discredit the opinion that the impact of human activities on the environment must be reduced. But agreement of that opinion is almost universal. Only the fringe of our society refuses to acknowledge it. NIA/MULTA really discredits itself by resorting to its hysterical assessment and polarizes the situation further.

The preceding article in the August issue, about Sustainable Grazing, quotes Burt Raynes saying "To take more from the soil than is put back is to steal from one's own children." Would [redacted] consider this man an environmental fanatic?

b7C

It is vital that we defend private property rights as seems to be the premise of NIA/MULTA's stand. But the ultimate piece of private property is our own individual bodies. The right to a healthy environment in which to live is being compromised by the stripping and poisoning of the planet's ecosystem. The purpose of every environmental organization, listed in NIA's ad or not, is to preserve that fundamental human right.

The Shepherd is an enormously credible publication. It provides me a wealth of information for running my sheep farm and wool business. But pandering to the kind of Neo-Nazi stupidity put forth in the ad NIA/MULTA placed in the Washington Post is a disservice to us all. I am curious about your purpose in publishing such trash.

Sincerely,

Please see the attached item.

Enclosed is the wrapper for the cassette tape we spoke of recently in relation to the FBI's investigation into the bombing of Judi Bari's car. The tape had been mailed my wife by one of the neo-nazi, religious fanatic proliferating across the land.

I have been away from home for some time so only now had a chance to get it into the mail, and even so, was not able to send it registered mail as you asked.

How is the search for the Lord's Avenger proceeding? While I hope the effort will be successful I have little respect for the organization you represent because it frequently has been more an agent of repression than a representative of justice, catering to the prejudices of its administrations, whether J. Edgar's or Ronald Reagan's. In that sense, I think the search is more an opportunity for snooping on environmentalists than tracking culprits.

The other item enclosed is from a sheep raiser's publication to which I subscribe, with my response, which illustrates the scope of the poison being spread against environmentalists.

I have no clear idea where this will all lead, but I don't feel optimistic about humankind's ability to correct the situation without it degenerating into a struggle similar to what is occurring in much of the rest of the modern world.

If George Bush and Ollie North can feel morally clean having committed atrocities against the peasant farmers of Nicaragua and swapping weapons for cocaine, and the Congress can feel sanctified financing El Salvador's army, should I expect more integrity in the reaction here, to the struggle to preserve the ecology of the forests? Will [redacted] or [redacted] behave differently than United Fruit Company or [redacted]

I think you in the agency have quite a challenge and hope you can rise to the occasion.

Sustainable Time-controlled Grazing Of Sheep and Chickens

By Lois Wright Morton

Undesirable pasture plants are often left by random grazing and allowed to mature, seed and multiply. Random grazing also results in a portion of the pasture being overgrazed and subject to erosion. Many shepherds have increased the amount and quality of their forage by rotational grazing. Burt Raynes of Oak Meadows Farm, Napa, California, has taken the rotational grazing concept and developed an innovative combination of intensive rotational grazing of sheep and chickens which results in highly productive and sustainable pastures. His 150-acre sheep farm not only feeds his flock of sheep and chickens but also renews the soil and encourages active growth of microorganisms, worms and insects. Burt provides food for microorganisms, worms and insect growth through the addition of frequent irrigation water and mulch to his California pastures. He finds that the additional water and mulch enables the fast regrowth of the forage as well as encourages the important multiplication of microorganisms, worms and insects. The worms and insect multiplication provides ample food for his chickens and valuable soil enhancement.

The Oak Meadows Farm rotational system can handle 125-150 sheep on a unit of thirty individual pastures of one acre apiece. Burt provides on-site water and all the sheep are grazed for one day in a one-acre pasture. They are moved early the next day to another pasture. Depending on the weather conditions and the time of year, the sheep will return to the first pasture in 25-30 days. The condition of the grass will determine the interval. Excess pasture is used for hay and ensilage.

When the sheep are removed from a pasture, that pasture lot is irrigated to capture and disperse excrement to the soil. After a pasture regrowth period of ten days, there will be an increase in insect and worm populations as well as plant regrowth. Night irrigation just before the chickens (or ducks or geese) are released into the lot will bring insects and worms to the surface. At daybreak about 150 small broiler chickens are introduced to the field. Twenty-four hours later the chickens are moved to a fresh lot. Under ideal conditions the total population of earthworms alone can reach 2,000 pounds per acre.

After the poultry are removed, the pasture is again irrigated to capture, distribute and transport the excrement to the soil. Each one acre lot needs to be supplied with a dressing of low cost mulch material at least once a month. Burt emphasizes that the kind of mulch is not important. The shepherd should look for an inexpensive source that is easy to haul and abundant. Pastures are reseeded annually in the fall, first by broadcasting red and subterranean clovers and then harrowing lightly. Oak Meadows Farm pastures are a healthy mixture of clovers, fescue, orchard grass and other native grasses.

The success of Burt's sustainable grazing program lies in his excellent plant utilization and regrowth which abundant water and mulch encourage. Only the top tender portions of the forage are eaten by the sheep. The removal of the sheep from the pasture allows plant regrowth and prevents forages from being eaten so close to the rootline that fast regrowth is difficult or impossible.

Burt has a basic flock of about 500 Rambouillet which include some Cormo- dales and Cheviots. He uses this system on about 75 acres of pasture. Burt very strongly feels that farmers are to be good stewards of the land. He says, "To take more from the soil than is put back is to steal from one's own children." Burt's system of sustainable time-controlled grazing not only makes good use of the land, but certainly enriches and builds the soil. Excellent criteria for sustainability.

Ad Reveals Top Environmentalists' Salaries

From Montana Woolgrower

In a quarter-page ad in the Washington Post on June 4, the National Inholders Association and Multiple-Use Land Alliance released the salaries of leaders of six of the nation's largest radical environmental organizations. The salaries range from $100,000 to $200,000 annually.

Charles S. Cushman, executive director of NIAMULTA, said, "The reason for running the ad is to make people aware of what a huge business the environment tal movement has become. High salaries are only the tip of the iceberg.

"Professional environmentalism is now a $250 million-a-year big business. Most of that money is tax deductible and tax exempt," Cushman continued.

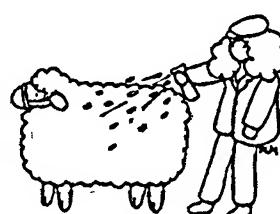

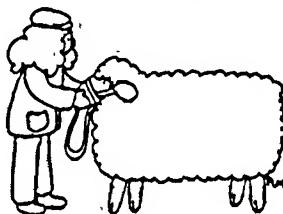

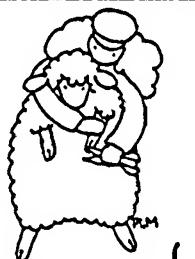

"These groups feed on environmental hysteria. Every new environmental scare, whether real or concocted, increases their contributions," Cushman said.

"The result is that while working people suffer, the professional environmentalists prosper. Every new environmental regulation has a cost—lost jobs, higher prices, or higher taxes. But the environmental elite don't have to worry about that," Cushman said.

"The real problem with the radical environmentalists is that they've traded in their blue jeans for Italian-designer suits. They've lost touch with Americans of middle and lower class income who have to pay the costs of environmental fanaticism," Cushman concluded.

The text of the Washington Post ad is printed here. The salaries listed in the ad do not include benefit packages, which for top executives typically range in value from 40-60 percent of salaries: Jay Hair, National Wildlife Federation, $200,000 salary; Fred Krupp, Environmental Defense Fund, $125,000 salary; Peter Berle, National Audubon Society, $120,000 salary; George Frampton, Jr., Wilderness Society, $120,000 salary; John Adams, Natural Resources Defense Council, $117,000 salary; and Rupert Cutler, Defenders of Wildlife, $100,000 salary. Myron Ebell, Washington representative for NIAMULTA, suggested that persons interested in the total compensation packages should contact the radical environmental organizations directly.

The National Inholders Association is a public interest organization with over 15,000 members nationwide that is devoted to defending private property rights against federal encroachment.

To the Editor:

Cult Full of Cowards.

Every time the Earth First! cult decides to have a protest, they inform the different law enforcement agencies that they need free protection. This is because Earth First! is a cult full of outlaw cowards..

Why does the police force choose to spend thousands of dollars to protect these cowards? They should understand by now this cult doesn't appreciate their hard work. When Humboldt County gave them free haircuts and free room and board, the Earth First! scum threatened to sue. When a nice man gave one of these cowards a free ride on the hood of his car, the coward got upset because he couldn't ride inside the car. Maybe next time (providing the cult member bathes, or at least uses deodorant) the nice gentleman might let him ride up front.

There is nothing anybody can do to make this lice-infested cult happy. (except to stop everybody from working). They're just too stupid to understand that some people don't mind working for a living. One would think that this cult would realize that if there were no jobs then there would be nobody to pay for these dope growers' welfare.

Why does Earth First! get all this protection and the logging industry and the lumber industry receive little or none? Anybody associated with the timber industry needs to start fighting this cancer. It's obvious if you don't start doing counter protests, this cancer will spread and you will be out of a job.

This is the sort of wild accusations and paranoia being circulated up here. There's money to be made, fanning the flames of hate. (That's what's occurring in the middle east.)

How are you guys doing on the assassination attempt on Judi Bari's life? I'm counting on the agency to do an honest job.

I've enclosed an item by Judi which illuminates the position held by most people of the Earth First! opinion.

Expand Earth First!

Dear EFers,

I feel like I should be sitting around base camp listening to Bob Marley, smoking a hooter, and writing this on the back of a rolling paper. But if Dave Foreman wants a divorce from all the hippie leftist anarchist humanists in Earth First!, I've got a few things to say.

First of all, I'm not out to trash Dave Foreman. I have a lot of respect for him, both for introducing me and many others to the idea of biocentrism, and for the decentralized, non-hierarchical non-organization he helped set up in EFl. But this divorce has been a long time coming, and it's based on real political differences.

Dave Foreman calls himself a conservationist, and believes that the focus of EFl should be limited to preserving wilderness in public land set-asides. I absolutely agree that we need to save everything we can, and I support all efforts to preserve or re-establish wilderness. But I don't think preserving wilderness in set-asides is enough. Our society is so destructive that any wilderness we preserve may be destroyed by acid rain, drought, or the greenhouse effect. And, as the earth continues to deteriorate under the weight of human abuse, social pressure to consume any unspoiled land will become so great that we will lose it eventually.

The only way to preserve wilderness and the only way to save our planet's life support system from collapse is to find a way to live on the earth that doesn't destroy the earth. In other words, Earth First! is not just a conservation movement, it is also a social change movement. This is why EFl has attracted so many people who live alternative lifestyles. It doesn't make sense to bemoan the destruction of nature while supporting the system that is destroying it. Yet Dave Foreman proudly calls himself a patriot, and glorifies the dominant culture of our corrupt society. He says he is a no-compromise defender of biodiversity, yet he has made the ultimate compromise of accepting a society that is literally based on the destruction of the earth.

But in spite of the fact that many of us think putting the earth first involves profound social change, it is wrong for Dave to characterize us as "leftists" or "a class struggle group." For one thing, we are too irreverent and we have too much of a sense of humor to be considered leftists. Besides, we are not trying to overthrow capitalism for the benefit of the proletariat. In fact, the society we envision is not spoken to in any leftist theory I've ever heard of. Those theories deal only with how to redistribute the spoils of exploiting the earth to benefit a different class of humans. We need to build a society that is not based on the exploitation of the earth at all—a society whose goal is to achieve a stable state with nature for the benefit of all species.

Of course we are nowhere near such a society. But having this kind of world view does not mean we are working on social rather than ecological issues, or that we are humanists instead of deep ecologists. It just helps shape the strategies used in our EFl organizing. Dave Foreman would like to keep the movement small and pure. But profound social changes don't happen without mass movements, and we need a whole lot more of us to bring about even the modest reforms needed to save the redwoods. So the strategy for Redwood Summer was to increase our numbers. We had 2000 people at the EFl rally in Ft. Bragg, and we have been staging constant actions all summer. We're not watering down the movement—we're spreading our radicalism by sending all those people home with new experience in direct action.

Another change that goes with our world view is the prominence of women in EFl. Ed Abbey's retrogressive view of women as sex objects doesn't make it here, where about 3/4 of the EFl organizers are strong and competent women. And although male dominance is not the only problem with our society or the sole reason for the destruction of nature, it is definitely a factor. Any change toward a non-exploitive culture would have to include a balance between masculine and feminine, and we had better start with our own movement.

It is particularly ironic that Dave sees us as having strayed from EFl's principles, because we are the front line warriors of Earth First!, risking our lives out there defending the forest. And that is the most important part of our movement. We are a direct action group, and our policy is set on the front lines, not on the lecture circuit or in the minds of theoreticians.

Nobody has all the answers, and one of the strengths of Earth First! has always been our diversity. Rednecks for Wilderness and Hippy Wu-Wu's can co-exist in Earth First!, as long as we are all fighting to save this planet. Our decentralized non-structure leaves room for many strategies to be followed at once. But if Dave Foreman or anyone else starts insisting on conventionality, we will lose our spark.

I don't see Dave's leaving as a split in Earth First!, but rather as an evolution. We are not moving away from his ideas, we are expanding them. The activities he proposes are not in competition with ours, and there is no reason for anyone to have to choose sides. Things are not the same as they were ten years ago and Earth First! is changing too. But we will continue, and a year from now we'll still be out there kicking corporate butt.

[redacted] wild-eyed accusation that Earth First! is a cult of cowardly outlaws requires a response.

Earth First! is anything but a cult. It is, in fact, one of the most diverse groupings of personalities, not capable of even forming into an organization. The commonality is the belief that the Earth must be considered First! in every activity that humankind proposes. Open your eyes and the reasons for this become self-evident.

As for being outlaws, the exact opposite is true. Earth First!ers believe that if the laws of common sense and civility were followed, all despoilers of the environment, not just the timber barons, would be tarred and feathered and run out of town. Instead the corporations are permitted to defraud and pillage, and use the Ken Reynolds of the world as their stooges. Earth First!ers are truly ecological patriots equal to Nathan Hale and Thomas Jefferson.

By calling Earth First! cowards, [redacted] ignores the immense energy and focus required to face down the lackeys of [redacted] and [redacted]. No courage is required to continue decimating the region's ecology. Blind ignorance pretends environmental destruction can continue.

b7C

The real cowardice is with the timber barons who behave like alcoholics denying the damage they do to their family. The timber barons are morally dysfunctional and warrant psychiatric care.

The true cult is the cult of consumption and self-aggrandizement. In that habit, many of the people who claim environmental consciousness are as guilty, wearing bumper stickers about saving whales and redwood trees, while being themselves little more than baby machines, cranking out 2, 3, 4 or more off-spring as if their genetic material were somehow unique, ignoring the fact that human over-population is the primary cause of the whole planet's destruction. If people truly loved their children they would have fewer of them. The Pueblo Indians observe our culture as one of locusts devouring everything.

The outlaws are the ones who wrap themselves in yellow ribbons, print Stomper Newsletters, scream obscenities and insults, threaten and assault environmentalists, bomb activist's cars, kill spotted owls to get their timber harvest plan through. Its as if the timber industry has lost its mind.

Face the facts [redacted] Big Timber could not care less about your victimization. The environmentalist you swear vengeance on is trying to save your job, your community, the future of your children, your planet. The reasons for this are quite simple. We are in this together. If the region is wrecked economically and ecologically for you, it is wrecked for us.

Looks like Alvin Toffler has an interesting book. His article in Newsweek refers to the FBI's [redacted] futurist, speculating on the infiltration of police agencies by hate groups to facilitate acts of domestic terrorism. Is it possible such a thing occurred to enable the bombing of Judi Bari's car? Her vehicle was parked outside the Willits Police Dept for the meeting of environmentalists and timber people. A tremendous amount of hate is being focused on the Earth First! opinion by the timber industry right now.

POWER SHIFT

Knowledge, Wealth and Violence at the Edge of the 21st Century. By Alvin Toffler

This book is the culmination of a 25-year effort to make sense of the astonishing changes propelling us into the 21st century. It is the third and final volume of the trilogy that opened with "Future Shock," continued with "The Third Wave" and is now complete, though the books may be read in any order.

"Powershift" is about the crescendoing struggles for power that still face us as industrial civilization loses world dominance and new forces arise to tower over the earth. It deals with violence, wealth and knowledge and the roles they play in our lives. It is about new paths to power opened by a world in upheaval as we speed into what might properly be called the Powershift Era.

A SUPER-SYMBOLIC ECONOMY

From Saudi Arabia and the Soviet Union to Western Europe and East Asia, the entire structure of power that held the world together is now disintegrating. A key, unnoticed reason for this global shake-up is the rise of a radically new system for wealth creation in which information (including everything from scientific research to advertising hype) plays a dominant role. This new system for making wealth is totally dependent on the instant communication and dissemination of data, ideas, symbols and symbolism. It is a super-symbolic economy.

All our old economic theories, models and measurement methods, designed for the smokestack era, are increasingly obsolete. Even our notions of efficiency and productivity. Throughout the smokestack era, the mass production of millions of identical products was symbolic of "modern times." Today, exactly as first suggested in "Future Shock" in 1970 and "The Third Wave" in 1980, we are standing the principle of mass production on its head.

Computer-driven technologies are making it possible to turn out small runs of increasingly customized goods and services aimed at niche markets. Smart companies are moving from long runs of commodity products to short runs of "higher value-added products" like specialty steels and chemicals. Constant innovation shortens product life cycles.

These changes have torn the belly out of some industrial giants that once dominated the economy and wielded enormous clout in Washington. The same changes have also shrunk the power of the mass-production labor unions. The same de-massification process has undercut the three giant TV networks, fragmenting their audiences as cable and other media arose to serve new niche markets.

Power also has been shifting rapidly in world finance as capital markets, too, change in response to the new system for wealth creation. Powerful old Wall Street firms, closely hitched to the old industrial dinosaurs, decline relative to firms that make the most sophisticated use of computers, telecommunications and financial software to spew out a stream of customized niche products—new types of securities, mortgages and insurance policies. Financial changes parallel those on the factory floor and shatter the old pecking order in money markets.

DESIGNER CURRENCIES

The growing volatility of the world capital market, dramatized by huge swings and punctuated by stock-market crashes and recoveries, as in "The Two Octobers"—1987 and 1989—is a sign that the old system is increasingly going out of control. The S&L crisis and the looming crisis in banking and insurance similarly tell us that old safety mechanisms, designed to maintain financial stability in a world of self-contained national economies, are as obsolete as the rust-belt world they were designed to protect.

In the new Third Wave economy, a car or a computer may be built in four countries and assembled in a fifth. Globalized production and marketing require capital to flow easily across national boundaries. This demands the dismantling of archaic financial regulations and barriers erected by nations to protect their economies. The result is a larger and larger pool of capital instantly available anywhere. But if this makes the financial system more flexible and helps it overcome localized crises, it also raises the ante, escalating the risk of a massive international collapse. And it threatens the power of yet another key institution of the smokestack era: the central bank.

Money itself is, in a sense, becoming de-massified. As products and services diversify, new technologies make possible a return to a condition that existed before the Industrial Revolution—the coexistence of multiple currencies in a single economy. We may be approaching the age of "designer currencies."

Japan is awash in this para-money. Customers buy 10 million cards a month from NTT, the phone company. They pay a sum in advance, then use the cards for making telephone calls. NTT loves it because it collects money in advance—and thus benefits from a "float" of the kind that banks used to enjoy before the speedup of check clearing drastically shrank it. Consumers can also get cards for all sorts of other things, such as rail tickets and video games.

Similarly, in the U.S., the Department of Agriculture is piloting a program that would ultimately replace food stamps issued to the poor with an electronic "smart card" programmed with one month's worth of benefits and a personal identification number.

Nowhere in any of these transactions does anything remotely like "money" in the traditional sense change hands. Such deep changes in the money system cannot occur without threatening entrenched institutions that have, until now, enjoyed positions of extraordinary power.

At one level, the substitution of electronic money for paper money is a direct threat, for example, to the very existence of banks as we know them. Banks have had a government-protected monopoly in check-clearing services. Electronic money threatens to supplant this system. Moreover, if card companies can issue credit to users, as they and the cardholders see fit, unconstrained by the kind of limits and reserves that govern banks, the central bank further risks losing its grip on monetary policy.

'PRODUCTION'

The super-symbolic, knowledge-driven economy is truly revolutionary. Raising capital, acquiring raw materials, recruiting workers, deploying technology, advertising, selling and distributing the product once were all seen as either sequential or as isolated from one another. The new model of production that springs from the super-symbolic economy sees production as increasingly simultaneous and synthesized. The parts of the process cannot be isolated from one another.

We are, in fact, discovering that "production" neither begins nor ends in the factory. Thus, the latest models of economic production extend the process both upstream and downstream—forward into aftercare or "support" for the product even after it is sold, as in auto-repair warranties or the support expected from the retailer when a person buys a computer. Before long, the conception of production will reach even beyond that to ecologically safe disposal of the product after use.

Similarly, it may extend the definition backward to include such functions as training of the employee, provision of day care, and other services. An unhappy muscle-worker could be compelled to be "productive." In high-symbolic activities, happy workers produce more. Hence, productivity begins even before the worker arrives in the office. It depends on the images, data, ideas, attitudes and symbols she or he brings to the job.

THE DOUBLE PAYMENT

Productivity also increasingly depends on contributions from the customer. In a world in which money is "informationalized" and information "monetized," the consumer pays for every purchase twice over: first with money and a second time by providing information that is worth money.

The customer typically gives this away for nothing via the optical scanner and the universal bar code on almost every item purchased—showing type of product, brand and size preferred, time of purchase. If a customer buys several bagsful of different products, the same data become available for each item, and it becomes theoretically possible to interrelate these items to one another, in order to infer a pattern of purchasing—a consumption "signature" for each individual or group of customers. If the shopper pays with a credit card, much more is revealed: (1) name; (2) address and postal code (important for segmenting markets); (3) credit information; (4) a basis for inferring the family income. By combining all this it soon will become possible to construct a surprisingly detailed picture of the individual's life style. This information, which itself has monetary value, is often sold by the retailer to manufacturers, who use it in designing new products, cutting costs and boosting their profits.

It's like giving the retailer an interest-free "information loan." But does the customer in fact "own" the valuable information he or she generates? Or does it acquire value only after it is collected and processed?

We lack the vocabulary, let alone laws and economic concepts, with which to deal with these unfamiliar questions arising from new battles for control of information. But such issues involve the transfer of billions of dollars—and a shift of economic and social power.

INFO-OVERFLOW

The new wealth creation system forces companies to restructure. Vast amounts of power in society have been concentrated in bureaucracies—in business, government, the military, the church, the schools. But the new system threatens the very nature of bureaucratic power.

Any bureaucracy has two key features, "cubbyholes" and "channels." Because of this, everyday power—routine control—is in the hands of two types of executives: specialists and managers. Specialized executives gain their power from control of information in departmental cubbyholes. Managers gain theirs through control of information flowing up through the channels.

But as we leave the industrial era behind, we become a more diverse society. This heightens complexity, which means that businesses need more and more data, information and know-how to function. Huge volumes of the stuff are being crammed into more and more cubbyholes—multiplying them beyond comprehension and stretching them to the bursting point. Today's changes also come at a faster pace than bureaucracies can handle.

Meanwhile, new kinds of data bases and software permit searching for information across cubbyhole barriers in intuitive fashion. These new forms of anti-bureaucratic information storage and processing point toward a deep revolution in the way we think, analyze, synthesize and express information, and a forward leap in organizational creativity. But they also eventually mean the breakup of the rigid little information monopolies that honeycomb the bureaucratic firm. And that means a painful shift of power away from the guardians of those specialized monopolies.

This "cubbyhole crisis" is deepened by a parallel breakdown in the choked "channels" of communication. Thus nonhierarchical communications networks are being built that crisscross companies, crash through departmental perimeters and link users not merely between the specialized departments but also up and down the hierarchy. A young employee at the very bottom of the ladder now can communicate directly with top-level executives working on the same problem; and, significantly, the CEO at the touch of a button can access any employee down below. They can jointly call up images, edit a proposal or analyze a spreadsheet—all without going through middle managers. This, too, undercuts the old structure of pyramidal power, as companies reorganize and pour billions into new computers, telecom and information systems.

The consumer pays for every purchase twice over: first with money and a second time with information that is worth money—a consumption 'signature' for each group of customers and transportation costs, taxes, insurance and overhead.

It is clear that in the economy of tomorrow huge firms will become more dependent than in the past on a vast substructure of tiny but high-powered and flexible suppliers, many of them family run.

Family firms have great advantages. In contrast to large bureaucratic firms, they can make quick decisions. They are often willing to take daring entrepreneurial risks. Communication through constant face-to-face interaction and even pillow talk is swift and rich, conveying much with only a grunt or a grimace. Family members typically enjoy a deep sense of "ownership" in the firm, evince high motivation, are strongly loyal and often work superhuman hours. In a family firm, nobody kids anyone. Too much is known by all about all. In a bureaucracy it is often difficult to know who has power, despite the formal hierarchy and titles. In the family enterprise, everyone knows.

Today's resurgence of family business is not just a passing phenomenon. We are entering a "post-bureaucratic" era, in which the family firm is one of many alternatives to bureaucracy and the power it embodies. In "The Third Wave" we wrote about such innovations as flexible hours, flexible fringe benefits and other "flex" arrangements that begin to treat workers as individuals and, at the same time, give the firm far greater flexibility, too. Today such ideas are commonplace.

What companies have not yet grasped, however, is that flexibility must cut far deeper—right to the very structure of the organization. The rigid, uniform structure of the firm must be replaced by a diversity of organizational arrangements. To grasp the "flex-firm" concept, it helps to remind ourselves that bureaucracy is only one of an almost infinite variety of ways of organizing human beings and information—from jazz combos to espionage networks, from

NEW MOSAICS

Out of the explosive new role of knowledge in the super-symbolic economy, a novel structure of power is emerging: the power-mosaic. An economy of small, interacting firms forming themselves into temporary mosaics is more adaptive and ultimately more productive than one built around a few rigid monoliths.

There is mounting evidence that many giant industrial firms, once the backbone of the economy, are too slow and maladaptive for today's high-speed business world. It is small business that has provided most of the 20 million jobs added in the U.S. economy since 1977, and most of the innovation. Worse, the giants are increasingly lackluster as far as profits go.

Small firms can now gain access to huge amounts of capital from Wall Street. The new technologies give them ready access to information. And it is easier for them to use it, since they tend to be less bureaucratic. New information systems also permit small operations to compete more effectively with the old giants: computerized data permit more efficient coordination and use of materials, bringing them together at precisely the right time to meet market demands and quickly ship ever-more-miniatuerized, lighter products—all of which cuts down on warehousing tribes and clans and councils of elders to monasteries and soccer teams. Each is good at some things and bad at others.

A company of the future could conceivably have within it a monastery-style unit that writes software... a research team organized like an improvisational jazz combo... a compartmentalized spy network, with need-to-know rules, operating within the law, to scour for merger or acquisition possibilities... and a sales force organized as a highly motivated "tribe" complete with its own war songs and membership rituals.

One might even imagine some day a military unit. As corporations go transnational, owing allegiance to no nation, governments may be less willing to bail them out and protect their facilities or people around the world. In fact, the inability of nation-states to stop terrorism, despite all the armies at their command, has already forced some major corporations to take matters into their own hands, hiring trained drivers, armed bodyguards and high-tech security specialists. And when Iran took some of his employees hostage, billionaire Ross Perot hired ex-Green Berets to rescue them. It is only a short step to mercenary troops—a corporate strike force or vigilante unit, as it were.

TOMORROW'S WORK REGIMEN

Whether or not any of this comes to pass, the inner life of the corporation must change. The old smokestack division of a firm into "heads" and "hands" no longer works. Just as owners once became dependent on managers for knowledge, today's managers are becoming dependent on their employees for knowledge. The knowledge load and, more important, the decision load are being redistributed. In a continual cycle of learning, unlearning and relearning, workers need to master new technologies, adapt to new organizational forms and generate new ideas.

As a result, "submissive rule observers, who merely follow instructions to the letter, are not good workers," says a study of employee relations and productivity in the giant Sony Corp. in Japan. In today's fast-change environment, it points out, rules, too, need to be changed more frequently than in the past. And workers need to be encouraged to propose such changes, because the worker who helps frame new rules will also understand why they are necessary and how they fit into the larger picture—which means the worker can apply them more intelligently. In fact, says Reinhard Mohn, chairman of Bertelsmann A.G., one of the largest media conglomerates, "only regulations which are endorsed by the majority of the work force have a chance of being abided by." But to invite workers into the rule-making process is to share power once held exclusively by their bosses—a power shift not all managers find easy to accept.

SHIFT POLITICS

In any system, democratic or not, there needs to be some congruence between the way a people make wealth and the way they govern themselves. If the political and economic systems are wildly dissimilar, one will eventually destroy the other. And if it is true that a new system for wealth creation is superseding smokestack production, then we should expect a historic struggle to remake our political institutions, bringing them into congruence with the requirements of a revolutionary post-mass-production economy.

The age of mass democracy was also the age of immense concentrations of power at the level of the nation. This concentration reflected the rise of mass-production technology and national markets. But new technologies are making local production competitive again. Take a loaf of bread. Today, many U.S. supermarkets, in addition to selling the national brands, have begun to bake bread on their own premises. Photos, once sent to Rochester, N.Y., to be centrally processed by Kodak, are now developed and printed on every street corner.

Simultaneously, the advanced economy transfers other forms of production to the global level. Cars, computers and many other products are no longer made in a single country, but require components and assembly in many nations. And nations are finding it harder to regulate global corporations capable of transferring operations, funds, pollution and people across borders.

These twin changes, one driving production down and the other up, have direct political parallels. Together they explain pressures for political decentralization in all high-tech nations—and simultaneous attempts to shift power upward to supra-national agencies. The most significant of the latter is the European Community's drive to recentralize power at a higher level by creating a single integrated market, currency and central bank. But even as the EC tries to concentrate political and economic decision-making, various regions are taking advantage of its attack on national power from above to launch a parallel attack from below. France's entire Rhône-Alpes region, for example, is hooking up with regions in Spain, Italy and Germany to pursue mutual interests.

What's more—contrary to conventional opinion—regions and localities, instead of becoming more uniform, are destined to grow more diverse. The statistics for the 1980s already show widening differences between the two American coasts, the Midwest and the oil patch, and between big urban centers and suburbs.

As regions and localities take on their own cultural, technological and political character, it will be harder for governments to manage economies with the traditional tools of central-bank regulation, taxation and financial controls. Raising or lowering interest rates or setting a new tax rate will produce radically different consequences in different parts of the same country. And as disparities widen, they may well trigger an explosion of extremist movements demanding regional or local autonomy or secession.

A NEW DEMOCRACY

Mass democracy implies the existence of "masses." But if technology permits the customization of products, if markets are being broken into niches, if the media multiply and serve continually narrowing audiences, if even family structure and culture are increasingly heterogeneous, why should politics still presume the existence of homogeneous masses?

With de-massification, people's needs and, therefore, their political demands diversify. Just as market researchers in business find more and more differentiated segments and "micro-markets" for products, reflecting the rising variety of life styles, so politicians are bombarded by more and more diverse demands from their constituencies. What is emerging is no longer a mass democracy but a highly charged, fast-moving "mosaic democracy" that corresponds to the rise of mosaics in the economy, and operates according to its own rules. These will force us to redefine the most fundamental democratic assumptions.

As the new wealth-creation system challenges entrenched power structures, it triggers social and economic conflicts that will eventually threaten political stability in the high-technology nations. And as turbulence increases, chance plays a larger role in our affairs and positive feedback creates giant snowball effects.

An example of the snowball effect as it operates in today's world is provided by the media. By focusing a handheld camera, a reporter can instantly project even the tiniest group of political cranks or terrorists onto the world's consciousness, and give it far more importance than it could garner on its own. Once this happens, the group becomes "news," and other media cover its activities, which, in turn, makes it still bigger news. All this creates what might be called "opportunity time" for tiny, pivotal minorities.

In the United States, new hate groups will proliferate as social unrest grows in the decade ahead, according to Dr. William Tafoya, the FBI's outstanding expert on the future. These groups will attempt to infiltrate U.S. police agencies to facilitate acts of domestic terrorism. "If I were a racist, what better place to initiate my hidden agenda than behind the shield of a badge?" Tafoya asks.

The rise of a new kind of economy, threatening to many, demanding rapid changes in work, life style and habits, hurls large populations—terrified of the future—into spasms of diehard reaction. It opens cleavages that fanatics rush to fill. It arms all those dangerous minorities who live for crisis in the hopes of catapulting themselves onto the national or global stage and transporting us all into a new Dark Age. The ability of democracies to deal with such threats will depend heavily on the media.

THE MULTI-MEDIA SOCIETY

The basic direction of change in the media since at least 1970 has been toward the breakup of mass audiences into segments and subgroups, each receiving a different configuration of programs and messages via traditional TV, cable, satellite, VCR and, soon, interactive hybrids of video and computer. Along with this has come a vast expansion of the sheer amount of imagery transmitted by television in the form of both news and entertainment.

This de-massification of the media, precisely as described in "Future Shock" and "The Third Wave," parallels the de-massifica-

The new media, intimately linked to the rise of the super-symbolic economy, are already being exploited to challenge—and sometimes overthrow—the power of the state.

tion of mass production, financial services, markets and the mass society itself. What it all adds up to is a society and economy so diverse, complex and fast-changing as to overwhelm or paralyze existing political structures. Politicians are called upon to make too many decisions, too fast, about complexities they cannot possibly understand. The new heterogeneity also makes consensus harder to sustain and national interests harder to define.

This is why political institutions in all the high-technology societies are in trouble. They are trying to deal with de-massified societies and economies with tools designed for the fast-fading age of mass production, mass media and mass political movements.

If diversity is necessary in consumer products, is it likely to be less necessary in culture or political ideology? The fact is that with some exceptions, cultures, too—like products—are de-massifying. And the very multiplicity of media accelerates the process. Thus it is high diversity, not uniformity, that the marketers of political candidates or ideas will confront.

The spread of the new system for wealth creation is such a powerful force that it has thrown the U.S., Japan and Europe into a new kind of hyper-competition. It has made it possible for the U.S. to outstrip the Soviet Union technologically, militarily and economically, thus contributing to, if not causing, the global crisis of communism. And the new media, intimately linked to the rise of the super-symbolic economy, are already being exploited to challenge—and sometimes overthrow—the power of the state. In the streets of Prague, students set up TV monitors on street corners and played videotapes showing the brutality of Czech authorities trying to suppress antigovernment street rallies. Chinese students in America faxed news of Tiananmen Square back to the student demonstrators all across China.

THE NEW ALLIANCE

If the essence of the new economy is knowledge-based innovation, the democratic ideal of freedom of expression becomes a top political priority, rather than a peripheral matter. The more the society advances toward a super-symbolic economy, the more important it is to permit an extremely wide range of free expression. The more any government chokes off this rich, free flow of knowledge—including wild ideas, innovation, even political dissent—the more it slows down the advance of the new economy.

The fight for free expression, once the province of intellectuals, thus becomes the concern of all who favor economic advance. Like adequate education, freedom of expression is a precondition for economic competitiveness. This is the basis for an unusual political coalition of the future—bringing together two groups often opposed since the Industrial Revolution: intellectuals, scientists, artists and civil libertarians on one hand, advanced managers and even shareholders and capitalists on the other. Such a coalition is the best guarantee of both intellectual and economic advance as companies and countries alike speed into the Powershift Era. ■

To the Editor:

Cult Full of Cowards

Every time the Earth First! cult decides to have a protest, they inform the different law enforcement agencies that they need free protection. This is because Earth First! is a cult full of outlaw cowards. 12-10
Why does the police force choose to spend thousands of dollars to protect these cowards? They should understand by now this cult doesn't appreciate their hard work. When Humboldt County gave them free haircuts and free room and board, the Earth First! scum threatened to sue. When a nice man gave one these cowards a free ride on the hood of his car, the coward got upset because he couldn't ride inside the car. Maybe next time (providing the cult member bathes, or at least uses deodorant) the nice gentleman might let him ride up front.

There is nothing anybody can do to make this lice-infested cult happy. (except to stop everybody from working). They're just too stupid to understand that some people don't mind working for a living. One would think that this cult would realize that if there were no jobs then there would be nobody to pay for these dope growers' welfare.

Why does Earth First! get all this protection and the logging industry and the lumber industry receive little or none? Anybody associated with the timber industry needs to start fighting this cancer. It's obvious if you don't start doing counter protests, this cancer will spread and you will be out of a job.

Dear [redacted]

Re: Pacific Lumber & The Cherney / Bari car bomb:

We've pretty well confirmed our suspicions that [redacted] and Maxxam used Salomon Bros.
as a vehicle for "financing" via [redacted] The "Forests Forever" initiative.

After the unexpected but narrow defeat of that initiative, Maxxam's Kaiser Aluminum/chemical division has had to do some scrambling for cash.
They would be in fat city had the old growth initiative passed.

Sadly, proving this all is another story. We do know that Salomon Bros. past SSL dealings are tantamount to public theft. However, they are so convoluted that putting anyone behind bars is not in the cards. This investment banking house has long served as a # funnel for shady deals.

In the [redacted]/Maxxam case, [redacted] [redacted] has used the services of the

Salomon Bros. firm in virtually all of his major dealings. They are tied together like Siamese twins. Okay, along comes [redacted] entrusted with about the largest chunk of Salomon Bros. money farmed out for investment entrusted anywhere. Salomon Bros. is his most important customer. He knows how to take care of them & they know how to take care of him. Therefore, [redacted] bankrolls. The Forests forever initiative, an initiative of great benefit to his customer's customer. Slick, eh? [redacted] like [redacted]

[redacted] and a lot of Salomon Bros. people, is a Wharton Boy. The good old boys from the good old schools have long pulled these sorts of shenanigans. Oh, yes, [redacted] has donated generously to Stanford's Business School, a good idea for an investment banker operating near the Stanford campus. ITS about as altruistic as [redacted] generosity to Harvard. [redacted] didn't want to be able to dine at the Harvard Club for the food. He just wanted to join the good old boys for these sorts of deals. Ironically, [redacted] never quite trusted status led to his being fingered by another semi-outsider,

What does all this mean for the Cherney / Bari Bombing? I dunno.
Yet, I think it has to be relevant,
if only by intuition.

* [redacted] a product of CUNY's August but unstatusful Baruch School of Business, not Wharton or Harvard or Amos Tuck, etc was a semi-outsider as well.
